Ruby set to raise funds for charity

RUBY Owen, 11, of Cowbridge, is fund-raising on behalf of Myeloma UK, and in particular for the forthcoming Myeloma Awareness Week, June 21-27.

Ruby's mother Marianne Williams is a myeloma patient. Myeloma, also known as multiple myeloma, is a blood cancer arising from plasma cells, which is treatable but not yet curable.

Inspired by her mother's story, Ruby began fundraising for Myeloma Awareness Week.

On June 26 – the day before her 12th birthday – Ruby will be having seven inches of her hair cut at Elements Hair Salon in Ogmore-by-Sea.

The hair will then be donated to The Little Princess Trust, and used to make wigs for children who have lost their hair through cancer treatment or other illnesses.

Ruby, who, like her mother before her, attends Cowbridge Comprehensive School, has the double aim of raising awareness and funds, and the money collected will be donated to Myeloma UK to help find a cure for this disease.

In spreading the word about Myeloma, it will also help with early diagnosis.

A spokesperson said: "Ruby's initial target was £200, but so far she has raised an incredible £2,447 and is now hoping to raise £3,000."

Readers wishing to learn more about Ruby's fundraising, or to make a donation, can visit her Just Giving page on www.justgiving.com/fundraising/rubyshaircutdonation or go to twitter.com/MyelomaUK/status/996704328030277632.

For more information on the condition, visit www.myeloma.org.uk.

Ruby Owen has beaten her original fundraising target, but wants to go further still.

Food and drink festival takes place this weekend

EXCITEMENT is building in town as the Cowbridge Festival and Food and Drink is back again to offer a special experience for gourmets and (responsible) drinkers!

This year, festival-goers can look forward to attractions all around the town, although the heart of the weekend will be the main site on Arthur John's car park. The town should be buzzing on Sunday and Monday (May 27/28) and there will be so much to see.

To mention just one, you can see what has become of the landmark beech tree near the Old Grammar School that was cut down earlier this year! (See story on page 20).

Pendoylan road would be a poor swansong for Carwyn Jones

BOTH new road proposals planned through Pendoylan, (one of the Vale's quietest, prettiest villages – a jewel), are a grotesque travesty for many reasons but mainly because of the cost implication of circa £50 million to £80m (which would easily be quadrupled by fruition).

With finite funds available, perhaps the money would be better spent on updating the archaic public transport system that hasn't progressed in over a quarter of a century, which could have, by now, enticed people to use.

Cardiff doesn't even have a bus station anymore (now buried under yet more office space), with a footfall of conservatively 28 million people per year.

It is so sad that we have not progressed like nearly all the European cities with their efficient green metros and corresponding links outside their capitals – also cutting pollution levels by doing so.

Another part of both proposals is to shut off one of Peterston-Super-Ely's main route access (Logwood Hill) which would not only deny access to the A48 and our only viable bus service, but also all the emergency vehicles to our village.

A total of 10 years have passed since this scheme was proposed to serve commuters to all the factories set up; Sony, Panasonic, Bosch (with handsome free grants from this Assembly Government) jobs now sadly gone. Yet another white elephant astronomically over priced venture, would be another mis-use of power.

Don't be misled: even the possibility of slightly increased footfall at the airport (currently 1.5 million, or hoped, four million per year) isn't argument enough to warrant this road.

If this is one of Carwyn Jones' desired 'swansongs,' then it would be a legacy he could not be proud of.

It has been 'proven' that roads breed yet more roads and with them significantly increased levels of air pollution, not to mention gridlock.

So perhaps a small amount of these funds by comparison should be spent on a) improving the existing country lanes, (single track only in many places), and more especially, b) building a modern 21st century accessible, affordable, efficient and comfortable public transport that works.

Surely, now is the right time to 'think outside the box' with joined-up responsible thinking, for the sake of better health and wellbeing for our future generations.

Susan Atkins,
Peterston-super-Ely.

Tracing the past

I HAVE been doing research into my ancestry and found out my maternal grandfather, John Thomas, was born in St Hilary; his parents were John Thomas and Ann Thomas.

I visited the churchyard this week and was so enthralled to find their graves and also enlightened with more information. I am eager to find out more.

By the way, a lovely church and a well kept graveyard.

Link road opponents are running down the Vale

I WOULD like to put my oar in the readers' letters section, regarding the opposition to the Five Mile Lane reconstruction and A48/J34 proposals.

It seems that some Vale residents would be quite unfazed if our towns and businesses remained inadequately connected to the rest of Wales. Indeed, it seems they would prefer it if our county showed no ambition at all for change.

In opposing both the rebuilding of the dangerous A4226 and the replacement of the Pendoylan lane to the M4, I feel that reality has been ignored by some of your correspondents.

There is talk of an 'ailing, debt-ridden' airport, which is currently on the rise with new routes and high passenger counts; and a 'former' Enterprise Zone at St Athan – which still supports at least two aerospace businesses – now supplemented by a large Aston Martin factory, a great success for the entire region.

To add to our traffic woes, the Government has imposed thousands of new homes and a population boom upon us. However, some residents, even those who may benefit from the construction, continue to oppose change by talking down the Vale of Glamorgan and the growth of our place in Wales.

Make no mistake, there is a desperate need in the Barry and Llantwit Major areas for new roads as ours are unfit for purpose – queues are already very bad on A4050 Port Road and A4055 Cardiff Road, and with the completion of the already-approved A4226, we will see increased daily traffic jams through St Nicholas and Bonvilston.

Ten years on from the start of this conversation, can we work towards an acceptable solution for all, rather than staunchly opposing any change that is put before us?

Owen Kendrick, Rhoose.

Link not needed

THE National Assembly for Wales Economy, Infrastructure and Skills Committee has reported recently (May 2018) on the performance of Enterprise Zones in Wales and concluded that evidence for their success is hard to establish.

At the Cardiff and St Athan Enterprise Zone, £13.8 million of public money has been spent on creating 137 jobs and safeguarding a further 85 at a cost per job of £62,009.

This does not appear to represent value for money.

Given that the Vale cites access to St Athan as a justification for spending, at the very least, a further £60 million on a major trunk road through the Ely valley, this report further undermines the case.

We all want the Vale to prosper economically.

When Aston Martin and similar enterprises are booming and the need for better communication can be demonstrated with certainty, then consider new transport routes, but now is not the time.

Linda James,
Peterston-super-Ely.

Boverton culvert: problems ahead?

WHEN the work started on widening the Boverton culvert, I thought it was just going to be a job.

I did not realise they were going to make a career out of it. Has anyone considered what will happen to all the extra water that flows through the widened culvert?

I walk along part of the brook every morning; within 200 yards downstream of the culvert, Boverton Brook is six foot wide and passes under a low footbridge. It is followed immediately by a right and left dogleg.

Oh, and there are the idiots that think the dumping of a road cone and other rubbish in the brook improves its appearance.

Another thing to consider is all the new roads and developments planned. Large areas that soak up the rain and release it slowly will be lost.

DC Geart-Andrews,
Boverton.

'Hinkley Point mud needs more testing'

REFERRING to The GEM's recent article on the dumping of mud from Hinkley Point in the Bristol Channel, campaigners oppose the dumping not because of 'passion' but because of science.

EDF's references to bananas, radon and cosmic rays are unscientific. Potassium40 (in the bananas), radon and cosmic rays are evenly distributed in body tissue and the radiation effects are well understood.

The radioactive particles which EdF refuses to look for in the mud are quite different.

The UN has published data showing enormous amounts of particulates from Hinkley Point. These are microscopic fragments of uranium oxide and probably plutonium which are small enough to inhale. From the lung they can travel anywhere in the body — to the lymph nodes, for example.

Such particles emit very short-range radiations all the time, continually hitting the cells within a few microns.

To treat this as an average all-body dose is like thinking you can safely keep your baby warm by tucking a soldering iron into her babygro.

The Government laboratory that tested mud samples did not use techniques capable of detecting uranium or plutonium.

This is why campaigners demand thorough testing.

Richard Bramhall.

Mayor thanks Vale for a memorable year

AS Mayor for 2017/18 I have had a wonderful year and have been proud to represent the Vale of Glamorgan.

I would like to thank and congratulate Cllr Leighton Rowlands, who I know will carry out his duty as Mayor in the exceptional way that he carried out his duty as my deputy.

Thanks also go to my consort, all the staff who supported the mayor's office: Julie, Dan, John, Mark and Jaqui, my pastor Mike Holmes and Mary Tornaberi.

It has been a year of so many experiences and I would like to thank those who gave me this unique opportunity. Especially those who have supported and encouraged me throughout the year.

I have hosted or attended over 500 civic engagements during my year.

It has been so rewarding and I would not have missed any of it. They have all been very special. I have had an opportunity to meet many memorable people and new friends.

I know that most of you are aware that I dedicated my year to the community and as a result have been able to network organisations to help each other, which I think cannot be overvalued.

My charities have been able to raise their profiles and get their messages out in a way that may not have otherwise been possible and have therefore grown in many good ways.

I have also been able to recognise many organisations that are run by volunteers, and have enabled them to help each other and network. When having the privilege to meet so many volunteers, a thank you for what they do does not seem enough, but letting them know that they are recognised, valued and very much appreciated by the Vale seemed to mean so much to them and I found it very humbling.

Just a few of the things I very much enjoyed was being able to invite the Rainbow Guides, Beavers and Cubs to the parlour, attend schools for question and answer sessions, visit local knitting groups and lunch clubs.

I also had the honour of welcoming Prince Charles to the Vale – another example of the opportunities that as Mayor I have had and enjoyed

Thank you.

Janice Charles

10k appeals for T-shirt sponsor

COWBRIDGE 10k Committee hopes to welcome up to 600 runners to its 2018 event.

Building on the success of 2017, when 434 runners took part, the committee is hoping to increase those numbers to 600 and proposing to limit it to that number.

Organiser Anne Birt told The GEM she was "delighted that sponsors were already in place".

"There are several sponsors on board, including Town and Country Collective, Brinsons and Birt, the Co-Operative and Penllyn Estate Farm.

"However, if there is anyone reading this who would like the opportunity to become part of the event, we are looking for a T-shirt sponsor.

"This a great way of advertising any local business or service and we would be delighted to talk to anyone who might be interested."

The event takes place this year on Sunday, September 30 and the official launch will be on Saturday, June 30.

Last year over £7,000 was raised for Cancer Research UK.

Llanblethian ladies visit Mansion House

THIS month, an afternoon out in style at the Mansion House in Cardiff was thoroughly enjoyed by the ladies of the Llanblethian Fellowship Group.

We were treated to a very splendid afternoon tea, followed by a guided 'Grand Tour' of The Mansion House, which is the Lord Mayor of Cardiff's official residence.

The tour was conducted by a very knowledgeable protocol officer for the Mansion House.

He explained that the original building was constructed in 1896 for James and Fanny Howell, the owners of Howells Department Stores in Cardiff. The building was subsequently bought by Cardiff Corporation in 1912.

The interior still retains many of its original features. These include a magnificent carved wooden central staircase, as well as a great deal of inlaid woodworking, and ornate fireplaces, all highlighted by full-length mirrors.

The contents of the building are a superb collection of donated furniture, artwork, paintings, sculptures, glassware and crockery.

The whole afternoon proved to be both enlightening and entertaining.

Cowbridge fashion show puts the glam into Glamorgan

THE annual Cowbridge Fashion Show lunch, organised by Esther Hitchcock, was held at the Bear on May 4.

This year the chosen charity was the NSPCC and the event was supported by the wonderful fashion shops in Cowbridge. The models, who included members of the NSPCC committee and enthusiastic local fashionistas, were both professional and gorgeous.

The ladies who attended the event were very glamorous and so generous in their support. The NSPCC St. Hilary and district branch would like to say a massive thank you to all involved as the event raised an incredible £5,000.

If you would like to know more about how you can support the work of the NSPCC or future local events, contact emma.brennan@nspcc.org.uk.

Probus members learn history of Margam Castle

THE meeting for May was held in Illtud's 216 on May 8 and was opened at 11am by the president who welcomed members, including a prospective new member.

Members were then asked to observe a minute's silence in memory of Roger Gullett who had recently passed away, the president in 2014-15. Roger was a much valued member of the club serving on the committee, organising the trips for the last few years and also acting as Almoner.

Cliff Edge introduced the speaker, Steve George, a local man who had spent from 1979 to 2011 as a ranger at Margam Country Park.

Steve began by showing a short video covering the history of Margam Castle and the park, the castle having started life in 1147 as a Cistercian Abbey being turned into a 'mock castle' in a 10-year period between1830 – 40 by Christopher Rice Mansel Talbot.

A number of similar castles were built in the Victorian era to signify the wealth and importance of the family, but they were really large comfortable family homes, rather than castles.

Steve was the first ranger at the park and we were kept entertained throughout by numerous amusing anecdotes of incidents. During his time there, the park has grown from a non-profit-making site for visitors to its current position hosting many events throughout the year.

The vote of thanks was given by Viv Kelly. Steve was then invited to draw the raffle – the winner was Tony Meakins.

The speaker next month will be member David Brunning, whose talk will be on the significance of the date August 22 to Llantwit Major.

A regular crowd of more than 50 people are entertained by singers and songwriters, with the occasional poet adding to the mix. You'll hear everything from ballads to folk songs, in Welsh and English, along with blues, a sprinkling of country and even the occasional punk classic.

Admission is free with a café selling refreshments through the evening.

A busy year ahead at Y Bont Faen WI

MAY is the start of a new year for Y Bont Faen WI and Jean Lloyd, voted president at the annual meeting last month, was in the chair.

She introduced the new committee and their new roles. She welcomed Lynda and Miranda, two new committee members. The members received their new programmes with a list of the speakers for the coming year.

The social secretaries have been busy. They have planned two walks, a bowling night, the annual mystery trip, a theatre visit and a trip to Cheltenham for the Christmas Market – which takes the diary up to December. What a year to look forward to.

The speaker for the evening was Christine Davies, a 'dementia champion'. She listed important facts about dementia, emphasing that there is more to a person than their illness and that it is possible to live well with it.

This week is Dementia Week and everyone should try to do one thing to help awareness.

Christine told members that they were delighted that they had finally persuaded some media to stop using the term 'dementia sufferer'.

The next meeting is on Thursday, June 21 at the Lesser Hall at 8pm. The speaker is Yolande Frett-Howell on 'Millinery Through the Ages'.

All are welcome.

Cowbridge U3A hears of Isambard Kingdom Brunel's influence on the south Wales area

THE talk at the recent Cowbridge U3A monthly meeting was given by Stephen K Jones, an expert on the engineering genius Isambard Kingdom Brunel, and an author of several books about the great man.

Stephen's illustrated presentation was entitled 'Brunel in South Wales (Part 1)', which was a self-contained story of Brunel's projects in the southern part of the principality.

Isambard's father was Marc Isambard Brunel, who was born in Normandy in 1769; he left France in 1792 because of his Royalist sympathies and travelled to the USA.

A gifted engineer, he designed machines that could mass-produce ship's wooden blocks (in sailing, a block is a single or multiple pulley) – a vessel like Nelson's HMS Victory would need at least 1,000 blocks.

The Royal Navy was the biggest market for blocks, so Marc Brunel moved to Portsmouth. Here he married Englishwoman Sophia Kingdom in 1799; Isambard Kingdom Brunel was born in 1806.

The young Brunel worked for several years as an assistant engineer on the project to create a tunnel under the River Thames between Rotherhithe and Wapping; his father was the chief engineer.

The work was undertaken under difficult and dangerous conditions. An ingenious tunnelling shield designed by Marc Brunel helped protect workers from cave-ins, but two incidents of severe flooding halted work for long periods.

The second flood, in 1828, killed several workers and badly injured the younger Brunel, who narrowly escaped death.

In 1833, well before the Thames Tunnel was completed, Brunel was appointed chief engineer of the Great Western Railway, one of the wonders of Victorian Britain, running from London to Bristol. He actually surveyed the entire length of this route himself.

It was Brunel's vision that passengers would be able to purchase one ticket at London Paddington and travel from London to New York, changing from the Great Western Railway to a steamship at the terminus at Abermawr, near Fishguard.

Due to financial difficulties, the plan was changed and the western terminus was built at Neyland on the upstream end of the Milford Haven estuary.

The dock at Neyland operated ships for the route to both Ireland and the New World. Brunel's most ambitious (and ultimately unsuccessful) ship, the gigantic Great Eastern, paid several visits to the place and was even laid up there for the winter of 1860.

Brunel did not just work for the Great Western Railway; he was constructing several railroads at the same time. For example, he designed the Taff Vale Railway (running from Merthyr Tydfil to Cardiff), one of the main arteries for transporting coal from the mining valleys to Cardiff.

He was responsible for re-routing the River Taff away from the area which subsequently became Cardiff Arms Park and the Principality Stadium, thus helping cure some of the drainage problems from which the site had always suffered.

In the building of the stone viaduct at Goitre Coed, which crosses the River Taff near Quaker's Yard, octagonal piers were used to prevent the river scouring their foundations. This was notable for being a skew river crossing that didn't involve a skew bridge.

Twenty years later in 1860, when the line was double-tracked, a second bridge was built next to Brunel's original one; as this was constructed with square pier supports, it always suffered from river erosion problems.

In 1851, Brunel designed the Vale of Neath Railway which took coal down the Cwmdare Valley and, as part of this project, built the Dare Valley Viaduct. Sadly, the viaduct was dismantled in 1947.

IK Brunel.

The Landore viaduct.

The 1852 'Great Tubular Bridge' over the Wye at Chepstow, linking Wales and England, and designed not to impede river traffic, is considered one of Brunel's major achievements. Although a new structure was put in place in 1962, it is still supported by the original cast iron piers.

Another notable Brunel bridge in south Wales was the 37-span viaduct over the River Tawe at Landore near Swansea, the longest timber viaduct he ever built. The structure was updated in 1889, using wrought iron for the central span.

Of course, Brunel could not personally oversee every project and relied on able assistant engineers such as Samuel Downing (Goitre Coed viaduct) and George Bush (Taff Vale Railway) to supervise the implementation of his designs. Under constant bombardment for updates on progress by Brunel, these men are the unsung heroes of Brunel's constructions in south Wales.

Next meeting: A talk on 'Mozart' with musical interludes by Rev Clive Williams at 2pm on Wednesday, June 13 in Cowbridge Town Hall. Please note this is a change from the published programme.

Visitors welcome (there is a small fee, which includes refreshments).

Couple fears a £90,000 bill for wall

A BARRY resident says the Vale Council wants him to repair a wall at the back of his garden – even though he claims he does not own it – and he thinks it could cost as much as £90,000.

Lloyd and Aisha Bailey and their young son live in Bastian Close, Cadoxton.

Behind their property is the face of an old quarry. Some 130 years ago, a retaining wall was constructed on it to support a house being built on Victoria Park Road.

Bastian Close was built – below it – in 1991.

In recent years the wall has started to crumble and fall into the gardens of Bastian Close.

The Vale Council wants Mr Bailey to undertake the work, but he has commissioned a report from a boundary specialist, David Gregson Limited, which states it is not his.

The couple say they have gone through much stress because of the dispute.

The author of the boundary report said: "In my opinion the retaining wall is owned by Kez House… the line of legal boundary is the external face of the wall abutting 14 Bastian Close.

"…the owner of 14 Bastian Close has no legal interest in the wall and, consequently, no responsibility for its maintenance and repair".

Mr Bailey believes it is a definitive verdict and has sent the report to the council.

Mr Bailey said: "In 2014, we came home one day to find a large section of the upper parapet wall had fallen and crushed the heras fencing below completely.

"It was six feet by four feet so it could have caused injury or even death if anyone was nearby.

"We promptly contacted the council for an update on the works progress, but heard nothing back for some time."

The council commissioned a boundary report from Ball & Co and sent the residents of Bastian Close a letter requesting payment towards the cost of their draft report and said work had to be done to make the wall safe.

In the latest twist on April 17 this year, the council wrote to Mr Bailey giving him 28 days under the Building Act 1984 to carry out works on the wall or there could be court action.

Mr Bailey says a specialist has advised him the work could cost around £90,000.

The GEM understands that Section 77 notices were issued to Kez House at one stage, but no work was undertaken. The owner said the wall did not belong to him and the Ball report backed up that view.

Local authorities can go to court under the Building Act 1984, Section 77, and if a structure is deemed dangerous can request an order for the owner to carry out the necessary work. If the work is not done, the authority might step in to do the work and recover costs from the owner.

Mr Bailey claims it is the responsibility of Building Control at the Vale Council to now make it safe.

A spokesman on behalf of Michael Isaac, who owns Kez House, said the Ball & Co report had made it clear the wall was owned by the owners of properties in Bastian Close.

He said: "In 2014 the Vale Council commissioned Ball & Co chartered surveyors to commission a report to determine the ownership of the retaining wall which lies at the rear of 14 Bastian Close and its neighbouring properties.

"The report concluded that the wall was owned by the owners of the properties in Bastian Close, including Mr Bailey."

The spokesman explained that Mr Bailey had contacted the Vale Council in 2017 with further information and the council had asked Ball & Co to re-examine their findings.

"Following a re-examination of the new evidence, Ball & Co did not alter their original conclusion. Mr Bailey is responsible for the maintenance of that part of the retaining wall which lies at the rear of his property.

"He has failed to comply with his responsibilities with the result that both Mr Isaac's property and the neighbouring property have sustained structural damage."

The spokesman added that Mr Bailey's neighbours have accepted their responsibilities and have carried out repairs to their parts of the retaining wall.

Mr Isaac has not had the opportunity to see the David Gregson boundary report yet; Mr Bailey submitted it to the Vale Council only recently.

A Vale Council spokesperson said: "This has been an extremely long-running issue which the council has sought to resolve on numerous occasions, despite having no liability for the structure.

"The responsibility for the repair and maintenance of the wall rests with the owners of the land.

"In 2014 the council employed, at its own expense, an independent chartered surveyor, with expertise in boundary matters, to establish definitely ownership.

"Copies of this report were sent to property owners at Bastian Close, setting out the legal responsibility of each. They were reminded of these responsibilities again in 2016.

"Following further complaints, and in a final attempt to draw this matter to a conclusion, this year the council asked the previously commissioned expert to provide an update based on additional information submitted by the homeowners.

"The expert confirmed that notwithstanding the additional information, the property owners in Bastian Close are, in their opinion, the legal owners of the structure in question."

The spokesman added: "As the structure continues to deteriorate and no action has been taken to repair an element of the wall to the rear of two properties, despite other properties in Bastian Close having undertaken repairs, the council has been left with no alternative to take action under the Building Act and is now seeking a court order forcing the wall's legal owners to take action."

Prison reform charity report points to rise in assaults at HMP Parc

A PRISON reform charity is claiming that overcrowding at Parc Prison is forcing prisoners to share cells, eating, sleeping and even using the toilet in spaces designed for one.

Ministry of Justice figures show that 1,700 prisoners were crammed into just 1,559 spaces at the prison in March.

Campaigners say that the unchecked rise of the prison population is responsible for the huge increase in assaults on staff and other inmates --a situation described last week as a "national emergency".

The Prison Service measures its own capacity in terms of 'Certified Normal Accommodation' – the number of prisoners it says it can accommodate in the "good, decent standard of accommodation that the service aspires to provide all prisoners".

However, with the majority of prisons overcrowded across England and Wales, they also have a separate measure called 'Operational Capacity'.

It is the maximum number of prisoners the Prison Service says each institution can safely handle while maintaining control and security.

In March, Parc's population stood at 96 per cent of this capacity.

The GEM understands that where prisoners are placed is at the discretion of the Ministry of Justice, not the individual prisons.

Prisons contain a number of one and two-person cells. In overcrowded prisons, more inmates will be put in cells than they were originally designed to hold.

Figures released last month showed that 942 assaults were recorded at Parc in 2017, over triple the number in 2012. Of those attacks, 260 were on staff.

There were also 1,576 cases of self-harm recorded in the prison last year. In 2012, there were just 550.

The director of the Prison Reform Trust, Peter Dawson, said: "Overcrowding isn't simply a case of being forced to share a confined space for up to 23 hours a day where you must eat, sleep and go to the toilet.

"It directly undermines all the basics of a decent prison system, including work, safety and rehabilitation.

"Despite a virtually permanent programme of prison building, overcrowding has been an unchanging reality of our prison system since 1994. Building prisons isn't the solution – breaking our addiction to imprisonment is."

Across the country, assaults have more than doubled in prisons over the last five years, and cases of self-harm have increased by 93 per cent.

Frances Crook, chief executive of the Howard League for Penal Reform, said: "This shameful rise in violence and self-injury is the direct result of policy decisions to allow the number of people behind bars to grow unchecked while starving prisons of resources.

"This is a national emergency, and the government must respond boldly and urgently."

A spokesman for the Ministry of Justice said: "Prison numbers can fluctuate, which is why we have robust plans in place to ensure we always have enough prison places for those sent to us by the courts.

"We will always ensure there are enough cells across the prison estate, and manage this in a way that gives taxpayers the best possible value for money.

"We are investing £1.3 billion to build modern new establishments, with up to 10,000 new prison places and better education facilities."

Trees planted in school's memorial garden will be the first of many

COWBRIDGE Rotary and Cowbridge Comprehensive School have joined forces to plant 12 deciduous trees in the school grounds as part of the Rotary goal to plant at least one tree for every member in Great Britain and Ireland, some 47,000 members.

Rotary has secured the valuable help of good friends at the Woodland Trust, the UK's largest conservation charity. The charity is delighted to support Rotary by supplying trees and advice to make sure the saplings have the best chance of survival.

Steve Pearce from Cowbridge Rotary and Mrs Davies from Cowbridge Comprehensive School planted the first two trees in the proposed location of the Jack Griffiths Memorial Garden.

A further 10 trees will be planted in the school grounds and will include oak, wild cherry, rowan and silver birch.

Mrs Davies said: "Rotary approached us and we felt it was a great opportunity to assist in the development of Jack's garden, and add to the grounds and environment. It will take some time for the trees to reach maturity so this is an investment in our future."

Cymanfa Ganu celebrated with gusto (and a cream tea)

ON Sunday, May 20, Churches Together in Cowbridge and District held its annual Cymanfa Ganu and cream tea at the United Free Church.

It was well attended and a mixture of Welsh and English language hymns were sung with energy and skill by everyone.

Rev Heather Weddell and Rev Stephen Adams directed operations, including some background on the hymns and writers with some reference to Pentecost of course.

A collection to mark the end of Christian Aid week was made and you are all encouraged to mark Pentecost Sunday, June 9, 2019 in your diaries for next year's event.

The Mayor of Cowbridge, Cllr Sian Vaughan JP was in attendance at what is her final local event as Mayor of Cowbridge and it was an absolute delight to see her there.

St Nicholas WI looks ahead to a new year

THE Annual Meeting of St Nicholas WI took place at our May meeting with our WI advisor Carolyn Davies present.

An excellent set of accounts was presented by treasurer Carol and adopted unanimously by the meeting, followed by president Janet Hayes' report reminding us of the various speakers and events enjoyed in the past year.

Our WI advisor conducted the election of the committee with two new members being welcomed: Vivienne, training to become an advisor and Rosemary.

A presentation was made to Wendy Lowe on her retirement from the committee and Janet was re-elected president.

After a break to enjoy a fish and chip supper, our advisor spoke of the many benefits of being a member and the opportunities available to widen one's interests. Details of forthcoming events within the county federation were noted, several of which had already been booked by members, including a walk up Pen y Fan.

The meeting closed with a successful plant sale raising more than £80 for our funds. We meet again on June 7 at 7pm in Bonvilston Reading Room, when there will be a talk about the charity Blood Bikes. New members are welcome!

'You CAN do business in Welsh' says Rhys

BUSINESSES in the Vale will now be able to receive free support and advice so that they can make better use of the Welsh language.

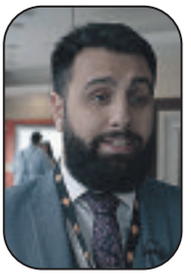
The support comes from a Welsh Government initiative and will allow small businesses across Wales to benefit from dedicated 'Welsh For Business' officers based in 12 locations throughout Wales.

Welsh For Business officers will offer a wide range of support services including translation of menus, social media messages and promotional materials.

Rhys Ruggiero is the local officer for Vale, and is based in Cardiff.

He said: "As Welsh For Business development officer, my role is to provide free support and advice to private sector small and medium businesses of any kind to develop their companies bilingually.

"Our main aim is to improve the visibility and awareness of the Welsh language in order for Welsh speakers and learners alike to feel comfortable and confident to use their own language in their own community.



Rhys Ruggiero.

"With this in mind, we work with businesses to show them what they can do and how to engage with the language.

"It's not compulsory but even the smallest thing can go a long way in showing that the business supports the Welsh Language and respects its local community, so why not give it a go?

"So far, I have worked with businesses in Cowbridge as they prepared for the Siarter Iaith competition that took place at the beginning of the month and there was lots of interest and excitement for the project and the support available."

He continued: "Having had a bilingual education and due to all the opportunities I've been given over the years because of my ability to speak Welsh, I was really eager to apply for this role.

"The Welsh language and its culture has played a huge part in my life and I feel it's really important that others benefit from the opportunities and identity that bilingualism gives you."

The Minister for Welsh Language and Lifelong Learning, Eluned Morgan, said: "Welsh For Business is a vital part of our goal to hit a million Welsh speakers by 2050, and I am eager to see just how many more small businesses across Wales choose to take advantage of this wonderful free service."

Any small business hoping to benefit from their local Welsh For Business service can find their officer at cymraeg.gov.wales/

Council fails to cope with mental health assessment backlog

THOUSANDS of people are waiting for urgent mental health assessments in the Vale as the council struggles with a backlog of referrals.

Figures have revealed that the Vale Council social services had more than 2,000 referrals waiting for deprivation of liberty safeguards at one point this year.

Deprivation of liberty safeguards under the Mental Capacity Act are designed to protect people who cannot make decisions about their own care and residence – and if accepted they are given continuous supervision and an appointed person is given legal powers to represent them.

On January 12 this year, the Vale Council had a backlog of 2,005 deprivation of liberty requests which had yet to be assessed, a report published this week has said.

An internal audit said a Supreme Court Ruling in 2014 has caused "a significant increase in referrals which the team were unable to manage".

The landmark ruling made factors such as the purpose of a deprivation of liberty, the person's compliance with it or whether it allowed a person to live a comparatively normal life irrelevant of when social services decided upon applications.

Lance Carver, the Vale Council's director of social services, said the 2014 ruling "created a huge rise in the number of DoLS authorisation requests made across the United Kingdom".

"As a result, the Vale Council is by no means alone in dealing with a backlog," he said.

"The council has worked closely with regional partners to deliver an efficient DoLS team which covers the entire Vale and Cardiff region including providing authorisations for people in hospitals.

"Welsh Government has contributed a small sum towards the development of this service. Every year since the ruling, the Vale Council has found additional funding to support growth in this service.

"We continue to review the potential to release more resources to it with the aim of reducing the backlog."

Significant women are remembered

THE Valeways Walking Festival last week featured the Barry Women's Trail devised to honour significant women across the town.

Vale AM Jane Hutt helped to guide a tour with Valeways volunteer coordinator Rebecca Exley and Professor Dee Beddoe.

The tour included visits to the home of Annie Gwen Vaughan Jones, who was secretary of the Cardiff Suffrage Society over a century ago and her daughter Gwyneth Valerie, a former headmistress of Barry Girls Grammar School.

The AM said: "We were joined by 25 walkers covering just one part of the Barry Women's Trail. We spent time remembering significant Barry women including composer Grace Williams, first female leader of the Vale Council Margaret Alexander and founder of the SAFE charity human rights campaigner Lucy Dickenson at the bench in her memory on the Knap."

FARMING MATTERS

European funding has been a lifeline for Welsh farmers

MAY has been a busy month for us here in Glamorgan and we have now finished helping our members fill in their SAF and hosted two very successful farm visits.

With this in mind I would like to thank our county chairman, Richard Walker and Rachel Edwards of Flaxland Farm for welcoming Keir Starmer, Labour MP for Holborn and St Pancras and Shadow Secretary of State for Exiting the European Union, and our members Gill and Charles Morgan and their son Richard of Gellifeddgaer farm for opening up the farm gates for Ogmore MP Chris Elmore.

These farm visits really help us with highlighting why the industry needs #FairFarmFunding and why the Barnett Formula would be bad news for agriculture in Wales.

Our rural communities currently receive around £350 million a year through the EU's Common Agricultural Policy, with some £260 million going to support farmers.

Rachel Saunders of the Farmers' Union of Wales writes on Farming Matters.

Each pound received by Welsh farms generates many more pounds for other businesses – mechanics, hauliers, contractors and so on – meaning the economic benefits of the CAP stretch far beyond the farmyard and are annually worth billions to Wales' economy.

With this in mind, it has been encouraging to hear that Michael Gove has acknowledged that post-2022 rural funding needs to be dealt with outside the Barnett Formula to avoid a drop of around 40 per cent in Wales' share of a budget.

But there is still no certainty about an actual budget for us here in Wales.

We don't have long until the budget has to be confirmed and it would be useful to know what we can realistically expect, so that we can plan the future of our rural businesses.

Yes, our Cabinet Secretary for Energy, Planning and Rural Affairs Lesley Griffiths confirmed that the Basic Payment Scheme will continue as planned for the 2018 and 2019 scheme years; however attempting to phase in a new system from 2020 could be damaging for businesses if it is overly ambitious and poorly investigated.

The bottom line is that protecting family farms and our rural communities must be central to any future policy.

Whatever the outcome of the Brexit negotiations, Welsh farmers will compete at some level with those in the rest of the EU operating under the next Common Agricultural Policy support system – proposals for which will shortly be published by the European Commission.

Wales needs to be mindful of this, and it's essential we do not adopt an inward-looking approach and hamstring Welsh producers operating in competition with our EU counterparts.

VALE MEETING ATTEMPTS TO SOLVE LITTERING ISSUES

CAMPAIGNERS and businesses have 'spoken out' about the 'heartbreaking' amount of litter strewn across Barry beach, and what they want done about it.

The beach hit headlines again over the recent Bank Holiday weekend as mounds of rubbish were left by visitors.

A meeting was held on May 17 for community groups, residents, traders and councillors to come up with ideas on how to keep the coastline tidy in the future.

A number of key points became apparent during the meeting.

Barry beach is not the only one suffering litter issues.

Rob Thomas, managing director at Vale Council which hosted the meeting at the Royal National Lifeboat Institution Visitors Centre on Barry Island, said the beach is not unique in having problems with litter.

"This is not a problem which is unique to Barry. Other beaches have faced the same issue. Barry does have an issue with it, but so do a lot of places."

Litter is 'the price of success of Barry beach'.

Mr Thomas said a lot of money has been invested in Barry beach in recent years, leading to growing visitor numbers.

He said: "We have a full events programme every year which brings people onto the Island. We have invested in the promenade and eastern prom in recent years. We're seeing huge numbers coming to the Island doing regular business.

"The price of success is the fact that we do have this problem to deal with."

The litter is 'heartbreaking'

Rob Curtis, from Friends of Barry Beaches, said no-one is blaming the council as they are "part of the answer" to the issue.

He said: "It's apathy. Even after all this education people are still leaving rubbish on the beach. It's heartbreaking."

Volunteers often give up part of their bank holidays to clean up after littering beach-goers, the meeting heard.

Aoife Blight, who runs Zero Waste Cardiff – a campaign to reduce waste in the Vale, said: "People don't realise they're littering half the time.

"This is not a unique thing to Barry. This is everywhere. We want to take back the narrative and change our town because we care. We want this to be a nice place for everyone – we all need to get involved."

Are 'city folk', not Barrians, to blame?

JOANNE CHEEK, from local group Beautiful Barry, said many residents of the town avoid the beach on sunny days.

"The majority of people are coming not from here," she said.

"If they come from the city they turn up and assume it's cleaned. We can't expect the people of Barry to clean the beach because of other people. Should chip cartons and plastic straws be banned?"

Mr Curtis said: "Chip cartons are one of the worst things. They can't even be recycled. It's absolutely appalling. Traders have a big role to play."

Mrs Blight said that 'incentives' should be used to stop people littering: one idea was to give free cups of coffee, presumably not in disposable cups, to litter. pickers

"We could encourage people to do it for 'positive' reasons," she said.

Other ideas from the meeting included having 'people' to greet other people coming onto the beach and handing out litter bags, issuing on-the-spot fines and using CCTV to identify offenders.

What can the council do?

SOME 144 litter bins are in use across Whitmore Bay, and the council can collect up to five tonnes of waste on busy days, when up to 30,000 people can visit the beach.

Cllr John Thomas, leader of Vale Council, said: "It's not a Barry issue, it's an issue in areas similar to Barry Island. It's about trying to educate the day visitors. It's not acceptable to leave the rubbish about. We need to make the facilities available to them to dispose of the rubbish in a proper way.

"There's no point putting 500 bins on the Island which for most of the year no one is going to use. It's not a money issue. It's a logistics issue.

"I just can't believe people would leave rubbish behind. I think it's all about education, then enforcement as a last resort."

Action group is formed to fight M4 to A48 link road

AN action group has been formed to fight the proposed link road from the M4 to the A48 after a number of families discovered that they could lose their homes, while others feel that the Ely Valley will be 'blighted'.

The group, named 'Vale Communities for Future Generations' (VCFFG) says that the proposal is 'economically flawed'.

At the moment, a consultation is running considering two routes for the road, one west of Pendoylan and one east.

VCFFG is unimpressed with either.

A VCFFG spokesman told The Vale: "Communities have been pitched into conflict with each other after being requested to choose between the two options – neither of which may even happen due to doubt over the scheme's value for money and impact on the community.

"The community is now in danger of becoming divided into bitter camps.

"Some residents see the proposed new road as a solution to increased levels of rush hour traffic through the village, whilst those who oppose the road believe impact on the environment and the adverse consequences for future generations will represent far too huge a price to pay for a disproportionately small economic gain.

"The most alarming fact is that a large number of residents in the community remain unaware of the road scheme or the extensive scale of the proposed highway development, whilst others are pitched into conflict feeling reluctantly obliged to support either the eastern or western route options."

The group has used computer models to highlight the effect the proposed road may have,

VCFFG is keen to ensure that all locals and others throughout Wales is aware of the scale of the proposals and the likely cost to the tax payer, questioning whether the proposed new road would actually deliver value for money when considered against alternative solutions and whether the proposed scheme is the right initiative to take when considering the interests of future generations.

Council's second consultation on Llancarfan School to run until July 9

THE Vale Council has decided to have a second public consultation concerning the future of Llancarfan Primary School.

The council recently announced plans to close Llancarfan Primary School – and relocate to a new site some four miles away in Rhoose.

A council spokesperson said that during the first consultation period, concerns had been raised, and the council had responded to them.

The second consultation seeks the views of governors, staff, parents and local residents on the educational merits of the proposal in light of this.

Cllr Bob Penrose, cabinet member for learning and culture, said: "In March, the council launched a consultation aimed at taking a holistic view of primary school provision in the western Vale. During this exercise members of the local community raised a number of important concerns regarding the impact to their local area, as well as some questions about the proposal.

"The Council is committed to ensuring that consultations are meaningful, relevant and appropriate proposals are clear, transparent and reflective of the views of those affected. This is something we take very seriously."

He said the feedback had been "incredibly valuable" and that a review had been completed.

He continued: "We are confident that many of the concerns raised, for example the future of the school building, can be addressed simply by providing a little more information and some reassurance to local communities.

"This is why a second consultation and an updated Community Impact Assessment with considerably more detail provided on some of the related issues has now been launched."

The second consultation will run until July 9. An updated consultation document will be provided to all parents, staff and governors. Responses can be submitted online at www.valeofglamorgan.gov.uk/westernvalereconfiguration, by email to consultation@valeofglamorgan.gov.uk or in writing.

The Save Llancarfan School Action Committee have asked their supporters to respond to the new consutation, and to any new information in the consultation.

South Wales Central AM Andrew RT Davies has welcomed the announcement that a further consultation will take place.

He urged as many people as possible to engage in the process, saying: "I welcome the fact that residents will have a further opportunity to have their say – and I strongly encourage them to join me in responding and working together to stand up for the community."

Discover this season's must-haves at Samantha B

WELL it's official, I have seen more than one swallow, so it must be summer.

If like me, you're just turning your attention to your summer wardrobe you may discover that it's time for a refresh.

This season, we have a fantastic collection of linen from trusted labels such as Olsen, Bianca and Signature. Olsen never fails to deliver; beautiful summery florals teamed with a blouson jacket in Mediterranean blue – team this with a relaxed pair of trousers and you're transported to summer heaven.

Bianca is always femine with a twist; team coral with tropical print trousers and achieve a smart casual look that can take you anywhere.

Another great colour from Bianca is khaki – it always looks crisp and goes effortlessly with so many colours.

Signature has pulled out the stops this season too, giving us lovely day dresses in many fabrics. Our favourite is a linen mix in sunshine yellow, it lifts your mood as soon as you put it on.

If you prefer a more floaty look, H and O deliver really pretty print skirts, floaty tops and dresses in gorgeous colours – a great look.

Adini and Pomodoro have also provided us with some pretty floral dresses and skirts; team these with a summer lightweight jacket-u-gun, and voila.

If a pair of trousers and nice top is more your thing, team a Capri or Pomodoro tunic with the ever-popular pull-on trouser in gorgeous summer colours... get ready for the compliments.

If you're looking for a more casual look we have plenty of choice. A wonderful collection of mix and match separates. Team a pair of crops or trousers with an over blouse or simple t-shirt and off to the beach we go.

This weekend, we will have a mid season sale rail with some selected half price bargains.

At Samantha B, we really do have something for everyone. Call in and see for yourself and receive 10 per cent off and all sales over £100 will receive a free gift.

Deadpool 2 puts in 'Maximum Effort' – AND ALSO DELIVERS MAXIMUM SATISFACTION!

GIVEN that the present cinematic landscape is so populated with superheroes, it takes a special kind of character to truly break out – and in 2016, Deadpool was that character.

After the false start that was his appearance in X-Men Origins: Wolverine, his own film, with Ryan Reynolds as the titular hero, was a gigantic success – irreverent, smart, not afraid to poke fun at itself or the genre, it was a hilarious and refreshing delight.

But can this lightning be captured twice? We now find out as Deadpool 2 hits cinema screens. Reynolds returns as Wade Wilson, the vigilante hero who is as indestructible as he is quick-witted. However, when the time-travelling Cable (Josh Brolin) comes back in time to kill a young boy (Julian Dennison) who has impacted the future, Deadpool and his hastily-assembled X-Force team (including the returning Brianna Hildebrand as Negasonic Teenage Warhead as well as new members like Zazie Beetz's Domino, Terry Crews' Bedlam and Rob Delaney's superpower-less Peter) must tackle Cable head on...

To say that the first Deadpool film was a cultural phenomenon is something of an understatement, the film taking a character who no-one seemed to believe in apart from the rabid fan base (and who had been handled so ineptly in the first Wolverine film) and turned him into a global icon.

Of course it helped that the film was so good, witty, irreverent and not afraid to break the fourth wall and poke fun at the X-Men franchise it loosely belongs to, among other things.

So, can Deadpool 2 live up to the gigantic hype? The answer is an unequivocal yes. The sequel is a film that takes everything that was so good about the first film, ramps it up and adds stakes and emotion that make it a deeper and arguably more substantial effort.

That doesn't mean that the trademark Deadpool wit is downplayed – far from it, with everything from Frozen to the DC cinematic universe getting mocked – but it creates a little more depth to a character that could easily have just glided along on his humour.

The love Ryan Reynolds feels for this character is wholly apparent, and he delivers an outstanding turn. With the stakes raised the 'Merc with mouth' is put into an unusual position (cinematically at least) by having to deal with some emotional upheaval, and Reynolds, who can do the comedy routine effortlessly, really impresses in the darker moments.

This time around he's not alone, and while some characters land more than others (many of the returning faces aren't given too much screen time), the arrival of Cable and Domino is the film's ace card.

Josh Brolin may already have clicked his fingers and owned the superhero summer as the villainous Thanos in Avengers: Infinity War (something this film doesn't shy away from mentioning) but here he is a brooding, physically-imposing thorn in Deadpool's side. On a mission from the future to right a wrong, he's a man hard to stop, and Brolin plays him with a seething intensity, part-Terminator, part-John Wick, in a superb performance.

Equally, Zazie Beetz's turn as Domino is effortlessly cool; with her power being luck, the film takes great delight in playing this up, and the actress, so good in Donald Glover's Atlanta, makes the journey to the big screen with cool aplomb.

Add to that Hunt For The Wilderpeople's Julian Dennison as a mutant with an important future and Stefan Kapicic's Colossus (the straight man to Deadpool), and the film has some really good performances.

David Leitch (John Wick, Atomic Blonde) takes the directing duties from Tim Miller, but there's no let up in terms of quality. The action sequences (Leitch's speciality) may have some slightly awry CGI at times but have a verve and intensity that is hugely impressive, and Leitch seems perfectly at home handling the lighter elements as well.

The film's main flaw is that sometimes the glibness becomes the dominating factor. It's always appealing to watch these actors wring laughs from no end of subject matter, but there are some moments that need to be played a little straighter, while the new characters, particularly Cable and Domino, don't get the depth and backstory that they should have.

That said, it'll be hard to find a more humorous and high-octane blockbuster this year; living up to the heights of the first film, Deadpool 2 is an absolutely sublime piece of work.

VERDICT: As irreverently funny as you would expect, but with an added dose of heart, Deadpool 2 is a fine sequel. The performances from Ryan Reynolds, Josh Brolin and Zazie Beetz are brilliant, David Leitch's direction hits the spot and the script increases stakes without reducing the laughs. Essential viewing.

SEE THIS IF YOU LIKED: Deadpool (2016), Guardians of the Galaxy (2014).

Vale MP asks for shorter journey times for patients

VALE MP Alun Cairns has called on Cardiff and Vale Health Board to work with neighbouring health authorities to support patients living near the Vale/Bridgend border.

Mr Cairns is concerned that patients living in the western part of the Vale are forced to travel to Barry or even Cardiff for out of hours GP care, when the facility at the Princess of Wales Hospital in Bridgend is much closer.

Residents in Ewenny, St Brides Major, Ogmore by Sea and Wick, among other Vale villages, who are registered with a GP in Cowbridge have to travel to the out of hours service in Barry or Cardiff, but those whose GP is in Bridgend have just a short journey to the Princess of Wales in Bridgend.

MP Alun Cairns is seeking out of hours health care closer to patients.

Mr Cairns met health chiefs to raise the matter.

The Health Board advised that out of hours care is linked to the GP practice a patient is registered to, as they are in separate boards. However, Mr Cairns has asked if they can review this matter to ensure that patients are able to receive the care they need as quickly as possible, avoiding the journey into Cardiff if Bridgend is a nearer option.

Mr Cairns said: "I am concerned that the emphasis should be placed on the patient and the care fitting their needs, rather than a system artificially created by the structure of the Heath Boards.

"I have had a very positive meeting with the Cardiff and Vale Health Board CEO and remain optimistic that he will be able to come up with improvements that work for patients and the NHS.

"I live on the west side of my constituency and fully understand the concerns that have been raised with me about the journey to Cardiff when seriously unwell, when Bridgend is so close. I do worry that the structure of health boards is dictating patient care, rather than the geography of the Vale.

"I will continue to press for improvements and a more joined up approach to health care across our health board boundaries."

Friends of Valeways welcomed to the Senedd

SOME 20 members of the Friends of Valeways group gathered at the Senedd in Cardiff Bay recently.

They were invited and welcomed by Jane Hutt AM for a tour of the Assembly building.

On a beautiful day, with stunning views across to Penarth, the Friends of Valeways had a guided tour of what is described as 'the world's greenest parliament build-ing', with its use of natural materials, geo-thermal heating and eco-air conditioning.

After a tour and a chance to ask Ms Hutt questions about behind-the-scenes workings of the Assembly, there was a guided walk around the Barrage, then lunch.

Friends of Valeways is an organisation set up last year with the help of the charity's honorary president, telly weatherman Derek Brockway.

Its aim is to support the Vale's countryside access charity. The group's next special event will be a Friends' summer walk and afternoon tea, date to be confirmed.

To join, or to know more, contact Carolyn Gully: carolyn@valeways.org.uk or phone 01446 749000.

A packed programme of demos at Cowbridge Food and Drink Festival

COWBRIDGE Food and Drink Festival is really excited to receive a National Lottery Awards for All grant for the 2018 Festival from the Big Lottery Fund.

The Big Lottery Fund is able to award grants, thanks to people playing the National Lottery. The grant is supporting the programme of demos and an exciting new community project – a community fridge.

The demos programme this year will show you how to make 'Great Food on a Budget' – no lobster this time.

The festival is working closely with The Vale Foodbank and will donate a collection of tinned goods for them.

Wasteless Suppers will be giving some great tips on eating on a budget, using food from the sale fridges that all supermarkets have.

Festival favourite, Sian Basset-Roberts, will be compère the demos in the marquee and will be joined by some eager young cooks to create a south Wales version of Anglesey eggs and a hearty potato dish.

We all love a barbecue, and Barry foodie superstars Shauna and Sam from Hang Fire will be hosting two live fire demos each day using cheap cuts – you don't need the finest steak for your barbecue this summer.

As well as the demo programme, the Big Lottery Fund's grant will let us launch the first 'community fridge' in south Wales. Community fridges are communal places where surplus food is shared between people in a locality by local businesses and individuals.

You can donate any surplus from your allotment glut, a discounted sandwich you felt someone might like, or even leftovers from your local cafe or deli at the end of the day.

Anyone can then help themselves to the produce.

Something might just take your fancy or you may not have enough cash on you to pay for lunch.

You can just help yourself; another time, you might feel able to contribute something.

Russ James, Chair of Cowbridge Food and Drink Festival, said: "Cowbridge Food and Drink Festival are thrilled to be driving this movement in south Wales with the help of Big Lottery Fund and hope that other organisations will come on board to offer sites or funding for the future of this amazing concept.

"After the festival, the fridge will initially be located in Cardiff and don't worry – it will be monitored for cleanliness, quality and freshness."

The Cowbridge Food and Drink Festival 2018 runs from Sunday, May 27 to Monday, May 28.

Time to hone your shave horse skills with the Twt Beech Project

THE Twt Beech project is up and running and is holding a wood fair on the Bear field this Sunday and Monday, thanks to the Bear Hotel and part-funding from Creative Communities, who have made this project possible.

The project has received funding through the Welsh Government Rural Communities - Rural Development Programme 2014-2020, which is funded by the European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development and the Welsh Government.

The aim has always been to try and involve as many people as possible from all walks of life and ages to be involved in creating something from the tree, which used to grow close to the Twt Park in Cowbridge, so come along and try some spoon carving, wood block printing, or stool making, as well as seeing some pole lathe work and shave horse skills (it's not what it seems).

The fair is running alongside the food and drink festival (May 27/28) along with other events on the Bear field.

There are many projects on the go, including commissioning the chainsaw carving, drying the sections ready for furniture making; but smaller objects have already been created from the tree including baskets, spoons, and chairs and some of these will be on display at the fair.

We hope you can join us for what looks like a great weekend.

And while you're at it, you can try the new Twt Beech Lager produced by Llandow-based brewery Tomos a Lilford. It's thirsty work, after all.

It is made with – you've guessed it – chips from the Twt Beech.

Rob from the Tomos a Lilford will be giving a talk on Sunday at 1.30pm at the Food Demo Theatre about this brewing process.

For more information, search for The Twt Beech Project on Facebook, or email Evans_nj@hotmail.com.

Special venues to visit this Bank Holiday!

Competition in the dining out market means the customer is the winner

IF you read the national press these days, you could get the impression that the restaurant sector was having difficulties.

Some celebrity chefs are closing prestige venues, while it looks as if some popular chains such as Prezzos and Carluccios may have over-reached themselves.

There's many reasons for these stories, but the cost of running businesses in the big cities must be a factor.

However, looking around the Vale and Bridgend county borough, the picture looks very different.

Here, potential diners out have a wide choice between long-established venues that possess that culinary gold dust – 'good word of mouth' – and bright new businesses run by bright young chefs who love their food and are keen to make their mark.

Another bonus is that these days, it is pretty much de rigeur for restaurants to emphasise how important local produce is to them.

As a result, there is a real synergy and co-operation between restaurateurs and local farmers and market gardeners.

It makes for low food miles dining out, and so many local people have a stake in it – or should that be steak?

Check out the terrific places our area has to offer.

It's a hackneyed phrase, but there really is something for everyone!

PHILIP IRWIN

The Meadow Vale Inn offers another classy culinary option for dining out in the area

THE Meadow Vale is a pub/restaurant that makes a statement before you even walk through the door.

On the road from Cowbridge to Pontyclun, it's on a prominent place on the corner as you enter Ystradowen. For years, drivers have clocked this spot as the White Lion corner, but times have changed.

In recent years the White Lion went through turbulent times. It was the local pub where the locals stayed away, but for John Cheeseman, who is now the general manager, those days are in the past, and even the outside of the building says: "It's a new start under new management".

Its striking smart new frontage is a world away from the old building, and John sees it as a place that will fit well in the Vale gastropub sector.

The locals are enjoying a good range of beers, ciders and lagers, and also local beers, with the Glamorgan brewery prominently featured.

What's more, the Meadow Vale does breakfast, a special two-course lunch at £10.95, Sunday lunches, and also has afternoon teas on the way.

The GEM, however, came along in the evening to sample the a la carte menu. It's worth pointing out that the varied and enticing menu we were presented with will be changing in June, and monthly thereafter, as seasonal quality produce is important to the Meadow Vale.

My guest is a vegetarian and it was pleasing to see two main choices on the menu, plus a third on the evening's specials. As a starter, she chose the Perl Las and leek croquette, with a garlic aoli sauce, and it made the best of the cheese and vegetable mix.

I chose the Welsh mussels in a white wine and smoked leek sauce, with rustic bread. It was all you expect of this dish, with tender, juicy mussels, and a sauce that was just begging to be mopped up with the bread.

Although the main menu is very tempting, and you can see that the Meadow Vale is aiming to give its pub classics a twist, we both opted for dishes from the evening specials board.

My guest chose the linguine, served in a carbonara sauce with roasted cauliflower, smoked leek and blue cheese, and it turned out to be a good choice. A sizeable portion, very attractive on the plate, and with plenty of flavour.

I chose the chicken and wild mushroom ballotine, pickled walnuts, fondant potatoes, burnt leek puree with a smoked whisky reduction. This turned out to be a seriously good-looking plate of food, with a lot happening on the plate.

The combination of chicken, mushroom and walnuts was delightful, while the dish was served with a mix of vegetables, some boiled and some pickled, giving a variety of flavours and textures.

The Meadow Vale may have to give some thought to its generous portion sizes if it wants to sell desserts. We were both pretty full, but duty calls, and we moved on to consider what was on offer.

My guest went for the apple and blackberry crumble, and I chose the bread and butter pudding. Both desserts come with the option of ice cream, cream, or custard and we both decided on custard.

It may have been a challenge but it was definitely worth it. The Meadow Vale doesn't want to serve up a bog standard dish, and there were smart and interesting touches on both, and they were packed full of flavour.

For a three-course meal at the Meadow Vale, you can expect to pay between £18 and £26, which is great value for food where the kitchen is working on adding something fresh and interesting to each plateful.

There's a sensible wine list, with bottles ranging from £16 to the mid-twenties, and with a good selection of old and new world wines.

All in all, the Meadow Vale looks like being a fine addition to the culinary scene in the Vale.

A Letter From HRH The Prince of Wales in support of local journalism

AS someone who appreciates the vital role played by local newspapers, for many years, I have enjoyed keeping in touch with local issues through such papers as the Aberdeen Press and Journal, the John O'Groats Journal, and the Wilts and Gloucestershire Standard.

These papers, and hundreds like them around the country, highlight so many of the important aspects of local community life in a way that no other media could hope to do.

They offer an invaluable service which is why I wanted to lend my support to the recent Local Newspaper Week, now in its 20th year.

There are countless examples of local newspapers acting as powerful and effective champions for their communities, and very often it is the local media that are first to a story and who stay with it long after the national media have moved on.

Local journalism is about giving communities a voice and empowering people with the knowledge to make informed decisions. Sometimes, a good local newspaper communicates the aspirations or concerns of the local community to a wider audience, putting local issues on the national agenda.

In a rapidly changing media landscape, the advent of digital media has transformed the way we consume our news.

Despite this rapid change, I am very encouraged by the evidence that suggests that local journalism is adapting well and remains in robust health with audience numbers remaining strong across print and digital platforms.

Indeed, I am told by the News Media Association that, according to a recent survey, local newspapers remain the most trusted source of community news and information, ahead of all other media.

The importance of trusted media sources cannot be underestimated in the era of so called 'fake news' and misinformation.

On a personal note, I have been enormously touched by the way local newspapers have covered mine and my wife's visits all over the country throughout so many years and, if I may, I would like to wish local newspapers up and down this country, every possible success in the future.

You provide a vital service which is as important now as it has ever been.

Why does EDF want to dump Hinkley mud on our coast?

I READ with interest your article in The GEM regarding Hinkley Mud, and I have to say that I have no confidence in the National Assembly making the correct decision on this matter.

I fully endorse the petition calling for the licence to be suspended to allow for a full environmental assessment before any dredging and dumping is started.

We already have a problem with excess mud coming ashore on Penarth beach because somebody decided years ago to dump local dredged mud out of Cardiff Dock entrance at the North Cardiff buoy, instead of where it used to be dumped at the Middle Pool buoy, where it would disperse and not cause any environmental problem.

The question that needs to be addressed is why does EDF want to bring this mud all the way from Hinkley beach to the North Cardiff Buoy position for dumping?

The answer to that is there is already a licence issued for dumping mud or sediment here, which makes the whole process easier.

The other question which needs to be asked is why can't they dump this sediment outside Hinkley? There is plenty of depth in that part of the channel and it would not cause any problems, it would just disperse.

The answer to that is that EDF would have to go through the whole process of licence application again.

My message to EDF is, keep your suspect 'mud' in the area of Hinkley. The last thing Penarth needs is a massive mud pollution increase on our beach.

Graham Vodden,
Penarth.

A refreshing sermon at Royal Wedding

HOW refreshing it was to see and hear Bishop Michael Curry deliver his sermon at the Royal Wedding, even if his flavour of Anglicanism is not precisely mine.

Unlike many of our bishops in Wales – including Bishop June of Llandaff – and elsewhere in the UK, he stuck to talking about God, Jesus, and love when given a global stage, rather than politics and the #MeToo campaign.

No doubt Bishop Michael lives in a nice pad, but sermonising about poverty when one lives in a palace, as bishops here do, and spending untold millions on new schemes to get people to 're-connect' with the Church (it is a new Church in Wales policy; look it up) stick in the craw somewhat.

A Forbes, Fonmon.

People must say 'no' to campsite

THIS is the very first letter I have written to a newspaper. I could not believe the piece in The GEM about the Vale Council thinking of putting a campsite at Porthkerry Park.

The park is one of the loveliest in all of south Wales; so tranquil and a haven for wildlife.

I implore everyone in Barry and the Vale to object strongly to this proposal.

Val Lovering,
Rhoose.

UNITED IN TRIBUTE FOR VICTORY DAY

PROOF, were it needed, that the twain does meet was in Cardiff on May 9 when members of the city's large Russian-speaking community were joined by Brits from Bridgend and the Vale, a Scot, and a couple of passing Americans, to take part in a tribute walk to mark Victory Day.

Victory Day – the end of the Great Patriotic War (Velikaya Otechestvennaya voyna) as it is still called by peoples of Russia and other former Soviet republics – falls one day after VE Day.

The reason Victory Day is commemorated on May 9 rather than May 8 (VE Day) is straightforward. The surrender of the Germans forces was on May 8 at 11.01pm, and it was already May 9 in Moscow.

The tribute walk is to honour relatives who died, or fought, in the war.

Many of those taking part carried photographs, or signs declaring the names, of fathers, grandfathers, uncles, mothers, grandmothers, and aunts, and these make up the "Immortal Regiments'. Similar events took place in London, Moscow and elsewhere in the former USSR, and in other parts of the world.

Among those taking part were three veterans of the Arctic (or Russian) Convoys, a route taken by the Merchant and Royal Navies to supply materiel to the Soviets from to and from Allied ports, and Arkhangelsk and Murmansk.

Churchill called it "the worst journey in the world".

He was right.

Temperatures in Winter could plummet to -50° Celsius, waves were massive, as were icebergs.

There was, of course, also the ever-present danger of attack by German U-boats or aircraft.

Representatives of the Royal British Legion and the Merchant Navy Association (Wales) also took part.

Between 1941 and 1945, some four million tonnes of supplies were carried on around 80 convoys. Eighty-five merchant vessels and 16 Royal Navy warships were lost on the routes.

The opposites and incongruities of East meeting West were demonstrated by the veterans and brothers in arms in their 90s – or older – down to babes in arms.

Former British servicemen and Merchant seamen walked next to the wartime Red Flag featuring the hammer and sickle with the Saltire and Union Flag on the other side.

One younger British veteran of an armoured regiment, who was trained at the very end of the Cold War – and whose life expectancy on the battlefields of West Germany had the Russians invaded was around 12 hours – stood side-by-side with those from Moscow and the Russian Far East, and from all points between.

Russian speakers or not, all gave it their best to deliver energetic shouts of Ypa! (Hura!).

Representatives of the Merchant Navy Association (Wales) were present, as was Teresa Goodwin of the Royal British Legion was there.

She said: " It was a massive privilege to be invited by Alevtina Kempster and others of the Russian-speaking community to attend the Victory Day walk.

The care and respect they showed to our WWII Veterans from the Royal and Merchant Navies, including of course Arctic Convoy Veterans, was amazing.

"Their message of remembrance echoes our own 'At the going down of the sun, and in the morning, We will remember them.'

"It was extremely touching to witness our common aim of teaching the young people so that past sacrifices are never forgotten."

Alevtina gave similar tribute to those who took part, saying: "It was wonderful to see so many people here, honouring their relatives who died, and those still alive, and it was especially good to see these fine old gentlemen – and so many children – here today.

"Thank you all."

Politics at the tribute walk were forgotten; this rather moving event was to commemorate lives lost in, and the lives saved through, war. AJ

'Living in fear' because of delays for treatment by NHS Wales

PEOPLE across Wales waiting for NHS treatment are risking long-term reliance on painkillers, mental health problems, unemployment and family breakdown, according to a new report on the impact of delayed treatment in Wales by the Board of Community Health Councils, published on May 10.

Prepared on behalf of the seven Community Health Councils (CHCs) in Wales, 'Our Lives on Hold' reveals the impact that waiting for treatment is having on a range of people of all ages across Wales – and calls on the Welsh Government to act to end long waits.

Hearing from people through advocacy services, engagement events and social and traditional media, the report puts forward the argument that reviewing performance simply against figures of Referral to Treatment Times (RTTs) against a set of targets described in weeks does not provide a picture of what it is like to wait for treatment and neither does it capture the wider and sometimes life changing impact on individuals, families and communities.

The report gathered feedback from people throughout Wales. Most people were living with pain, many with chronic long-term pain substantially affecting their quality of life.

For some people, long-term use of strong pain killers was a cause of concern. People worried about side effects, over reliance and reduced effectiveness. Long waiting times for many procedures coincided with long waiting times for Pain Management Clinics. Many respondents did not meet the criteria for chronic pain management as there is a known and available surgical intervention that would address the problem completely.

Long waiting times also had an impact on many people's mental health, with some reporting feelings of powerlessness and distress and experiencing waits of 100 weeks or more with no clear indication of how much longer they may need to wait.

A continuing theme of the report saw people reporting a combination of decreased mobility, pain and ill-health that removed them from their usual activities and support networks and left them feeling isolated and lonely.

Many people waiting for treatment in Wales told CHCs they are carers themselves, with children, grandchildren, or a spouse who rely on them to provide care that they become unable to carry out.

This often had a financial impact on the entire family and for many respondents, money worries were a major concern. Not all those waiting for treatment were retired, with one respondent age just 25 and facing an 85 week wait for shoulder surgery and unable to work or develop their career like their peers.

With employee sickness benefit timescales not taking long NHS referral to treatment times into account, some people said they were facing great financial hardship. Intolerable levels of pain and mobility problems had also led to some people paying for private treatment.

Some patients lived in fear of their condition worsening while waiting for treatment. One respondent living in south Wales was diagnosed with a brain aneurysm and referred to a hospital in Liverpool for follow up treatment, and at the time of the report was still waiting for the appointment. The respondent reported living with extreme anxiety, concerned that the aneurysm could rupture at any time.

Speaking about the report findings, Mutale Merrill, Chair of the Board of CHCs said: "Some of the stories we heard as part of the collation of this report were extremely distressing. As well as the effects on people's physical and mental health, as well as their finances and employment, there are accounts of patients feeling a loss of dignity and having to rely on others to carry out intimate personal care because they can no longer do it for themselves.

"Others reported a breakdown in relationships or a feeling that their entire lives were on hold – a theme that carried through almost every story we heard."

Ms Merrill continued: "The number of stories in this report equate to only a small proportion of the missed targets reported each month by the NHS in Wales.

"For those who told their stories, this measure is unlikely to hold much meaning. Instead, most people measured their wait in terms of the impact on their day to day life, their finances, their relationships, their careers and their independence.

"It is difficult to see how clear, long established targets on waiting times are meaningful to anyone. As they stand, they are not providing assurance to the public nor driving improvement.

"The Welsh Government needs to look again at how it measures NHS performance.

"Responses to the recent White Paper 'Services fit for the future' indicate widespread support for the introduction in Wales of a Duty of Quality.

"We believe this provides a meaningful opportunity for decision makers to set out clearly and simply what quality means from a service user's perspective. This must include recognising the harm done by inactivity as well as the benefits of timely care."

Commenting on the report, Suzy Davies AM said:

"Enough is enough. The main issues about which constituents contact me are waiting times for ambulances and waiting lists for treatment.

"Only this week I met a constituent who had been told they must wait four years for colorectal surgery despite having previously contracted sepsis due to stoma blockage. It is completely unacceptable to ask someone to live in fear like that – and for so long."

Mrs Davies, the Welsh Conservative AM for South Wales West, added "Today we hear that temporary bed closures are being made permanent and ABMU is looking for further closures.

"If Local Health Boards are struggling with workforce planning then the Labour Welsh Government's Health Secretary must stop saying he "expects" improvements and tackle the reasons why staff are reluctant to come to Wales.

"In the meantime, I hope that these recommendations are acted upon to improve patient experience and control."

Alzheimer's Society calls for support on cupcake day

PEOPLE across Wales are being called upon to 'unite against dementia' by signing up for Alzheimer's Society's Cupcake Day on Thursday, June 14.

Alzheimer's Society Cymru (ASC) is urging everyone to unite against dementia with their families, friends and colleagues, by baking or buying cupcakes to raise funds.

Eirwen Jones, of ASC, said: "We're calling on people across Wales to dust off their bowls and start whipping their cream for ASC's cupcake day.

"Each cupcake will help us find a cure, improve care and offer help and understanding for people affected.

"Whether you choose to celebrate on June 14 or mark the occasion another time in the month, there are no excuses not to get involved. Visit cupcakeday.org.uk to sign up today."

Last year more than 1,400 people supported cupcake day and people in Wales raised £60,000. This year, ASC hopes to raise even more. MF

Gaye joins a quiet tea for 8,000 at Buck Palace

I WAS invited to attend the Her Majesty The Queen's First Garden Party at Buckingham Palace as a recipient of the British Empire Medal BEM in this years New Year's Honours.

Gay Fifield BEM (right) and colleague with the Rt Hon Alun Cairns MP.

I took with me a friend who is involved with Age Connects Senior Health Shop and Friends and Neighbours.

From the moment we stepped through the gates of the Palace, we joined a multitude; we knew we were on the start of a very special experience.

With ladies and gents in their finest and a multitude of top hats and in every direction there was a palpable air of excitement

A military band provided the entertainment and there were many exclamations of: "Can you believe the weather?" it being some 25° Celsius.

Tea was served at 3.30pm in the refreshment tent and I wondered how staff would cope with their being some 8,000 people in attendance.

At 4pm, the National Anthem was played and The Queen dressed in a blue coat and matching hat and two of her sons, Their Royal Highnesses Prince Andrew and Prince Edward, arrived at the Buckingham steps.

The Beefeaters [Yeomen Warders of Her Majesty's Royal Palace and Fortress the Tower of London, and Members of the Sovereigns Body Guard of the Yeoman Guard Extraordinary] made sure not a toe was over the line as the Royal Family made its way to the Royal Tent.

As its members made their way down the line they chatted to many in the crowd. I noticed at this point The Queen was wearing dark glasses and walked with a umbrella.

They made their way to the Royal Tent for refreshments along with special guests. We took the opportunity to have some refreshments and took some photos.

At 5.30pm The Queen's party made their way up the line again; we then left through the Palace, taking time to look at the architecture and beautiful paintings and 'wowed' at the staircase on both sides.

We took some photos outside before we left and both said it was an experience never to be forgotten.

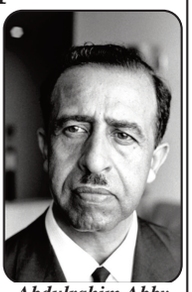
More tributes paid to top Barry-born diplomat

AS reported in last week's GEM, the Mayor of the Vale, Cllr Leighton Rowlands, paid tribute to Barry-born Somali diplomat Abdulrahim Abby Farah who died at his home in New York on May 14.



Abdulrahim Abby Farah.

Mr Farah was 98 and has been described as one of Somalia's most accomplished diplomats.

His nephew Steve Khaireh contacted The GEM to add a tribute.

He said his uncle had led a remarkable life.

"There's an in joke in our family that we were all born in 50 Thompson Street Barry, and Abby, his son Abdulrahman, and Abdulrahim's brother and I all received MBEs and he was the forgotten one, despite his achievements which put all of us in the shade!"

Among Mr Farah's achievements were serving as Somalia's Ambassador to Ethiopia from 1961 until 1965 and taking on the role of the country's representative to the United Nations in New York from 1965 until 1972. He also represented Somalia in the League of Arab States from 1979 until 1990.

Mr Khaireh added: "He lived an amazing life. He had all his faculties and he was always humble.

"His family was always proud of the work he did around the world and the efforts he made to help communities."

Vale AM Jane Hutt said: "We all need to learn lessons from like Abdulrahim Abby Farah who was born and educated at Gladstone School and Barry Grammar School before leaving for Oxford and making a huge mark in the world.

"Representing Somalia in the United Nations for 25 years, Mr Farah has had an extraordinary career as a diplomat serving Somalia but also standing up for human rights and equality in South Africa and across the world.

"He is a man our children will want to know more about so we can learn lessons from him, as we give our deepest sympathies and condolences to his family, friends, community here in Wales and in Somalia."

Vale Council looks into Dinas Powys 'holes'

Cllr Crowley is 'concerned' about people making their way to St Andrews School or onto Dinas Common.

TWO POSSIBLE mini 'sink-holes' have appeared at the bottom of the footpath to Dinas Powys Common that joins Station Road near the A4055 Cardiff Road junction.

They have also destabilised the hand-rail fence that has stood firm for decades.

Cllr Rob Crowley said: "The holes are a real mystery as they're bigger than mole-holes and there are no piles of displaced earth where they've burrowed.

"Residents had asked me to see if the council could put in a footpath for the last stretch to the Station Road footpath because pedestrians have to step into the road for the last 10 metres.

"The way drivers are using the route through the village as a rat-run means it's particularly dangerous for parents walking their children to St Andrews School or taking them to the play equipment."

Cllr Crowley has contacted Vale Council officers who will look into the matter.

Council takes another look at 'glamping' plans

PLANS to set up 'glamping pods' at popular Vale country parks are to be considered again due to fears over privatisation of the land.

The Vale Council had approved plans to lease acres of Porthkerry Country Park and Cosmeston Lakes Country Park to turn them into sites for 'high-quality camping pods'.

But the council's environment and regeneration scrutiny committee on Thursday night (May 17) voted to send the proposal back to cabinet for re-consideration.

Cllr Lis Burnett, who called the decision in for further scrutiny, said the plans "appear to relate to the disposal and potential privatisation of large tracts of public open space within our country parks to facilitate the establishment of camp-sites which would render them off limits to members of the public."

She said: "The big question for many residents is whether this is creeping privatisation. Is there a privatisation of public resources agenda being developed?

"Many of us saw the horrendous images of litter and damage at Cosmeston recently. In reality these issues are already kicking in. As a result of overall budget cuts I understand that resources for litter picking have been reduced and that there is regular abuse of the conservation areas.

"Our country parks desperately need additional resources but I would ask scrutiny to consider whether this is the appropriate way to provide them."

Cllr Burnett also told the committee that Cllr Bob Penrose, the cabinet member for learning and culture, had in 2016 asked the authority to investigate whether Center Parcs could set up a resort at Cosmeston Park.

Sully councillor Kevin Mahoney spoke in favour of the call-in, but accused councillor Burnett of "utter hypocrisy" because a plan for wake-boarding in Cosmeston Lakes was put forward under the previous Labour administration.

He said: "What they're proposing is to intrude on one of the most serene, picturesque parts of the country park with a bunch of glamping pods.

"The people funding our parks will be deprived of that. Why don't we start looking after people in our area rather than people in other areas?" Councillors Nic Hodges and Mark Wilson also spoke in favour of the decision being called in.

Bob Guy, operational manager for regeneration at the Vale Council, told the meeting the authority plans to explore "commercial partnerships and ways of improving the parks as well as making them more sustainable."

"The other reason for looking in that direction was to bring the parks into the 21st century with its tourism offer," he said. "There are a number of reasons we're exploring opportunities."

Concerns were also raised about the lack of detail in the proposals, about how much money they could make, and how widely publicised they had been before cabinet approval.

Cllr Jonathan Bird, cabinet member for regeneration and planning, said the council only want to explore opportunities for the sites and would come back before scrutiny committees with more specific proposals.

He said: "All we're asking to do is ask people if they have any ideas, and we can decide properly.

"I'm happy for every individual decision on any application that comes through to go through cabinet."

But all but two members of the committee voted to call-in the decision.

Cllr Vincent Driscoll voted against while Cllr Stewart Edwards abstained.

Speaking after the meeting, Cllr Burnett said: "I'm not against activities, I'm against the privatisation of public open space.

"I hope now that the cabinet will take notice of the strength of public opinion against plans to privatise areas of our country parks. Finding the right mix of activities in our country parks is a fine balance."

RED LETTER DAY AS VALE COUNCIL CELEBRATES BLUE FLAGS

THE Vale Council has received seven awards for coastal spaces in the county in recognition of their high quality.

Whitmore Bay, Southerndown and Penarth Marina were awarded Blue Flags by the Foundation for Environmental Education, with the first two also landing Seaside Awards, along with Jacksons Bay and Cold Knap.

Internationally recognised, the Blue Flag is widely considered the 'gold standard' for beaches.

Blue Flag certification guarantees the quality of bathing water, but there are a total of 33 targets spread across four categories that beaches must meet to gain the award.

Penarth is one of only three marinas in Wales to receive the accolade, while Southerndown is a new entry on the Blue Flag list as the number of Vale spaces with the honour grew from two to three.

That beach has also been handed a Seaside Award, as have Jackson's Bay and Cold Knap.

'No unnecessary delays in housing Syrian family' says council leader

A family of Syrian refugees are a step closer to finding a new home in Penarth.

Volunteers from 'Croeso Penarth' have been given a boost in their efforts to bring a family from a United Nations safe haven to the coastal town.

The Vale Council cabinet on Monday (May 21) approved the resettlement bid, allowing Croeso Penarth to press ahead with the scheme run by the UN and the Home Office.

The approval came after claims the council was causing "unnecessary delays" to the process and keeping a family at the camp for longer than they needed to.

But Cllr John Thomas, the Leader of the Vale Council, dismissed this claim at Monday's cabinet meeting.

He said: "I can assure members that there has been no unnecessary delay.

"It's very important the local authority get things right before we give consent.

"We have got to the stage that we're happy to consent, and I'm very happy to be able to do so.

"I'm very pleased we have got to the stage where we are, and confirm there have been no unnecessary delays."

Croeso Penarth has previously said it submitted its bid to the council in January, and similar schemes have been approved by other authorities in between two and six weeks.

Four Syrian refugee families were resettled in the Vale in 2016/17 – the first year of the scheme – including nine adults and 10 children.

In 2017/18, the council planned to resettle four families, and only two – four adults and six children – were actually brought to the area.

There are plans to receive an additional two families in June.

Vale Council to receive more than £40,000 to deal with 'period poverty'

SCHOOLS will each be given up to £100 of sanitary products for pupils in the Vale.

The Vale Council has approved plans to provide products that a re free at the point of use to every school girl in the area as part of a national campaign.

The Welsh Government has given the council £31,500 this financial year for sanitary equipment to be installed in schools, and £8,666 to buy the products themselves.

Councillors will form a working group to decide how the money should be used and gather evidence about the Vale's current approach to dealing with the issue.

In the meantime schools will given sanitary products while the full details of the scheme are worked through.

All secondary schools will get £100 worth of sanitary products, and all primary schools will be given £30 worth after plans were approved by Vale Council's cabinet on Monday (May 21).

The plan was agreed after a previous council meeting heard that some girls are reportedly missing school because their parents cannot afford sanitary products.

'Llandough needs a transport solution now'

A DINAS POWYS councillor says expansion at Llandough Hospital needs a proper road infrastructure around it.

There are plans for a £16 million brain injury rehabilitation centre as well as the relocation to Llandough of the neurological and spinal services unit from Rookwood Hospital in Llandaff.

Cllr Andy Robertson said: "Further expansions planned at Llandough Hospital are exciting and welcome on many levels – but horrifying without the planned addition of the right surrounding infrastructure."

He pointed out that there was also a proposal to build a two-storey extension to its orthopaedic unit to include offices, changing facilities and reception. This will allow space in the existing premises to build two new operating theatres.

Cllr Robertson explained: "This all sounds wonderful, but it's all being done without any improvement to adjoining roads to ease the increasing traffic.

"The Merrie Harrier Junction is set to become 400 per cent over capacity by 2026 according to the Highway Impact Assessment commissioned by the previous Vale administration in 2013. It's already over capacity.

"Llandough hospital has tripled in size in the last few years. It is now the second largest hospital in Wales, and the second biggest employer in the Vale.

"Now, despite promises to fund and carry out the results of a study into the traffic corridor through Dinas Powys, the Welsh Government has declined a funding application of the next stage of the study they initiated.

"So far, it has cost over £100,000 which alone would mean these public funds would have been wasted.

"That means no improvement at all can happen, with or without a by-pass, as the study is incomplete. However, funds are in place to complete Stage 2 and it will be interesting to see which option will be chosen.

"The Assembly is not just ignoring the daily bottleneck of vehicles winding their way through the eastern Vale but playing with people's lives.

"Most ambulances and other emergency vehicles have to use the A4055 (Barry to Dinas road) and are being snarled in traffic even with their sirens blaring.

"There are still around 3,000 more houses to be built around this area that form part of the Local Development Plan which was largely developed by the previous administration. That's up to another 6,000 vehicles each way daily through an unchanged Merrie Harrier junction."

He said he had requested a meeting with Ken Skates, the Cabinet Secretary for Economy and Transport to discuss local transport problems.

"We're still waiting for his response. The head of Llandough Hospital has said they're desperate for better vehicle access in and out of the hospital. All we're trying to do is help to achieve this for everyone's benefit."

A Welsh Government spokesman provided optimism that further funding for the study would become available later in the financial year.

"While we are aware of the transport issues that remain in the area and the need for further improvements, we have already invested in transport improvements in this part of the Vale.

"Competing government priorities and our ambitious programme of infrastructure upgrades across Wales meant there was insufficient funding for the Welsh Government to continue to support the Dinas Powys Transport Study being taken forward by the Vale Council.

"However, Welsh Government officials will continue to engage with the council and will review the position should additional funding become available within this financial year."

LINK ROAD 'ACTION GROUP' IS FORMED

The spokesman continued: "A public meeting was held at Pendoylan Memorial Hall earlier this month and was attended by Vale AM Jane Hutt, along with over 200 locals from Pendoylan and several surrounding villages.

"It was disclosed at the meeting that all email responses to an initial consultation exercise on the road last year had not been received or considered by the Vale Council or their consultants."

VCFFG says that speakers at the meeting alleged failures on the part of the council and its consultants to follow legally required procedures in the design and appraisal process, and reported that Ms Hutt said that she would investigate whether Welsh Government procedures had been followed.

VCFFG is 'unimpressed' with the economic justification, saying that it is 'too high a price' to pay for helping Cardiff Airport and the St Athan Enterprise Zone.

The spokesman claimed the airport is loss making, saying: " The airport recently released results for the financial year 2016-17 showing pre-tax losses of £5.97m.

"The previous year's results showed a pre-tax loss of £4.9m. The airport boasted annual passenger throughput in October 2017 of 1.4 million a year; less than Bridgend train station.

"There remains no hard evidence to suggest the new M4 link road would deliver levels of economic growth to justify the investment required."

The group is also querying the cost projections. Arcadis (the consultants chosen by the Vale Council) suggest the three-mile length of road should be deliverable for a cost between £57 million and £81 million, depending on which route is adopted.

However, the VCFFG spokesman responded: "The recently-constructed extension to Cardiff's Eastern Bay Link Road, extending to 0.75 miles and linking the A4232 Butetown Tunnel to Rover Way, was initially estimated at a cost of £27 million but was opened in June last year at a final cost of £57.3 million."

The spokesman said: "Anybody who is not aware of the new highway proposals should visit the Vale Council's website and follow links to "M4 to A48 Transport Network Consultation".

"Consultation responses are required by June 5, after the previous deadline was extended due to the lobbying efforts of VCFFG. Anyone who wishes to liaise with the group can email contact.vcffg@gmail.com.

‘Barry needs affordable retail units’ says councillor

PLANS for new shops and apartments on derelict wasteland are at the centre of a planning row in Barry.

As reported in last week’s GEM a mixed development of flats and four small shops is being planned on a vacant site in Thompson Street, at the back of 50 Holton Road next to the Liberal Club.

Barry Town Council has objected to the plans, claiming it would be an “over-development” of the site, while Plaid Cymru have said the application is “below standard”.

But Cllr Vincent Driscoll, director the Fresh Bacon Company, which is behind the plans, has said the new flats and shops are much needed in the area and criticised Plaid councillors for “objecting to everything”.

The Vale Council’s planning committee will decide whether to allow the development.

Cllr Driscoll said the shops would be significantly more affordable to let than other units in Holton Road, where some businesses are paying up to £25,000 a year in rent and rates.

But Barry Town Council, in a letter of objection, said: “The proposal fails to indicate any fire escape and there is a lack of provision of amenity space for the proposed flats.

“Additionally, the council have concerns regarding the servicing of the retail units directly off Thompson Street.”

In April’s planning committee meeting, Plaid Cymru councillors voted to defer an application to turn a former Barry office block into 32 new affordable homes over fears work spaces are disappearing in the town.

The scheme, at Provincial House in Kendrick Road, was eventually allowed by the committee.

Cllr Driscoll said the shops he’s proposing in Thompson Street will be low rent and won’t be liable for rates – making them the cheapest town centre units available.

“The alternative is to turn it into all apartments – which a local housing association is willing to do,” he said.

“I’m not surprised Plaid objected – they object to absolutely everything.

“Here, a member of the council is investing his own money in a vacant site in the town centre. Plaid should tell the people of Barry what they want to happen in the town centre.

“They are critical of everything the council does.

“I’m investing my own money in a regeneration of a brownfield site in the town centre.”

Funding for bypass study ‘could be found’

THE study for a Dinas bypass is still on course, the chair of Dinas Powys Bypass Steering Group has claimed.

Rod Harrod told The GEM that he was pleased to hear that the Vale Council had received encouraging news from the Welsh Government.

“We’ve just heard some good news from Cllr John Thomas, Leader of the Vale Council, that the WelTAG study for the bypass is still on course.

“He’s received a response from Ken Skates, Cabinet Secretary for Economy and Transport, as to why the funding for ‘stage 3’ of the study was just not considered affordable within the Local Transport Fund budget.

“Mr Skates told the Vale Leader his officers will continue to work with Vale officers on the studies.”

Mr Harrod explained: “I believe because of the size of the bypass study and project, a different funding budget will need to be applied for the bypass.

“This may be similar to the way that the funding for Five Mile Lane had to come from a ‘Special Projects Budget.”

He added: “Stage 3 will involve greater detail of the process once an option is chosen at the end of Stage 2.”

Car stolen during Penarth burglary

POLICE are investigating a burglary which occurred in Plas Taliesin, Penarth, overnight on Sunday, May 20.

A black Ford Mondeo was stolen during the burglary after the burglar obtained the keys from the owner’s knapsack.

Officers are reminding residents to ‘make sure their doors are locked’ and any belongings are stored safely.

To minimise the risk of suffering this type of burglary, the police recommend keeping all keys out of view, ideally taking keys, handbags, and mobile telephones, upstairs, unless you live in a bungalow, when going to bed, and away from windows, doors – and cat-flaps.

Anyone with information should call 101, quoting reference 1800180181, or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Penarth hosts volunteer event

GLAMORGAN Voluntary Services (GVS) regularly hosts a series of mini volunteering events in various locations across the Vale.

The next will be held on Thursday, May 31 at Penarth Library from 11am to 2pm.

A GVS spokesperson said: “It is a chance to embark on a new adventure as a volunteer and open up a world of opportunities. You will be able to chat directly with local volunteering providers and find the right opportunity.

“Volunteering is a good way to get to know your community better, meet new people, and gain new experiences. You’ll also boost your chances of finding paid work. “

GVS development officer, Dave Edwards, will also be attending and will be available to discuss your funding requirements. So as well as finding out more about volunteering opportunities, you can also take advantage and find out more about how to improve your funding position.

If you would like to attend just come along on the day and a warm welcome is guaranteed. For all enquiries contact GVS, Tel: 01446 741706, E-mail: enquiries@gvs.wales, www.gvs.wales.

‘Facing a seemingly never-ending tide of rubbish’

THE plastic problem – it’s just not going to go away.

Plastic is ‘’disposable’ and for many people that means they can just chuck the empty drink bottle over their shoulder and forget about it.

But we can’t. Plastic does not just go away. I get envious of builders and bricklayers – they do a job and, years afterwards, they can walk past a house, shop, school, library or church with their grandchildren and say “I built that”.

There are people who regard parts of Barry as their own personal tip. Are they, in decades to come, going to walk past a pile of plastic bottles and proudly say to their grandchildren, “I built that”? They could do, because the plastic bottles will still be there decades later.

Henderson Island in the South Pacific is one of the most remote islands in the world and covered in 18 tonnes of plastic that has been washed across the oceans.

Beaches are often cleaned in the mornings. We actually have it backwards. The beach needs sweeping late afternoon, as the visitors are leaving because if it isn’t, the rubbish will be picked up by the tide to pollute the seas.

The local council does a splendid job in a ‘Catch 22’ situation which they can’t win.

If, as recently, there is an enormous amount of litter left, the council gets criticised for not removing it. That costs money. If the money is spent on extra resources and manpower to clear the litter, the council gets criticised for not spending enough on other vital services.

But the simple fact is that sweeping the beach in the morning is a ‘stable door’ job. Perhaps a change in our signs might yield results.

Not so long ago I went on holiday to America. Visiting San Francisco my wife and I could not help but notice the absence of litter, particularly in parks. The signs were positive and appealed to people’s better nature. One example was: ‘Thank you for helping to keep our park beautiful by taking your trash home’.

Much attention was drawn to the issue of littering recently when two schoolgirls, Nia Davies and Amelie Alexander (my granddaughter) went out and picked up the litter left by the inconsiderate few on the May Bank Holiday Monday. When children do it, a lot more notice is taken.

Children also have a happy trick of embarrassing their parents. So, a second suggestion is targeted directly at the children. We put information about what happens to plastic litter (particularly the way it destroys the environment and kills wildlife) on signs with illustrations attractive to children. Hopefully, they will say to thoughtless parents “No – we mustn’t leave that on the beach, it will float away and kill the dolphins.”

Amelie and Nia made a difference. We all need to ask ourselves whose side we are on in dealing with the problem of litter.

David Alexander, Barry Island.

Dinas Council elects new Chair

DINAS POWYS community councillors unanimously elected Cllr Steve Thomas to be Chair of the council for the next 12 months.

Cllr Steve Thomas (right) with Cllr John Fanshaw.

Cllr Thomas stated that he hoped that a sense of harmony and endeavour would prevail in the council, with everyone working to the best of their ability to ensure the best outcomes for the village.

He said he would encourage the council to address big issues such as the bypass, housing and the local infrastructure with the same enthusiasm as those who spoil the quality of life by fly tipping, inconsiderate parking and anti-social behaviour within the village.

Finally, the chairman wished the best to all those organisations who work hard to improve the quality of life in the village and in particular all those who volunteer in the many clubs, teams and societies.

Retiring chair Cllr Andy Robertson was congratulated for his service over the last year.

In proposing a vote of thanks to him, Cllr Chris Franks said that it could have been a difficult year.

He said: “There was a new council, with a lot of new faces elected and we had a new clerk. We all appreciated your commitment to ensure that the last year was a success.”

Cllr John Fanshaw was elected as the new Vice Chair. He is also Chair of Dinas Powys Voluntary Concern, Chair of Murch Community Centre and a church warden.

Park and ride funding approved

PLANS for a new park and ride site and a pedestrian link between Penarth and Cardiff Bay are a step closer after funding was approved.

Plans for a new park and ride site at Cosmeston Lakes Country Park, and also the proposed Penarth Headland Link – a 1km pedestrian and cycle link between the Cardiff Bay Barrage and Penarth Esplanade – will be explored by Vale Council.

The park and ride would run buses to Penarth Esplanade to link up with the new headland link – saving people living on the edge of Penarth from having to drive through the centre of town.

And it is also hoped the walkway will allow Penarth to share in the economic success of Cardiff Bay.

The council has been given more than £1million to look into transport initiatives, which includes £600,000 to prepare business cases on improving coastal transport links with Cardiff, as announced at the council’s cabinet meeting on Monday (May 21).

Dozens of bus stops will also be improved along the A48 between Cowbridge and Culverhouse Cross and in Llantwit Major, Barry and Penarth thanks to an award of £145,000 of Welsh Government funding, with a further £105,000 likely to follow next year.

It is hoped the bus stop improvements will lead to more frequent services.

A further £214,000 of Welsh Government funding will be put towards planning eight new walking and cycling routes in and around Dinas Powys.

But bids for £1million to complete a study into the Dinas Powys bypass, and for further cash to look into transport links between the M4 and A48, were both turned down.

Cadoxton bowlers tackle Dinas Powys in cup

THE weather was reasonable for Cadoxton’s Munro Cup meeting with Dinas Powis.

Derek Jeffries struggled at the start and trailed 7-1, before a comeback started on the eighth end.

A ‘5’ on the 10th took the lead at 10-7. This success was held until the end with only three further losses during the remainder of the game.

Kelvin Chedgzoy’s rink started with three losing singles, but a ‘4’ took them into the lead.

In a close game the score reached 9-9 after 11 ends. The opponents, skipped by Gerry White, then increased their score to 13 but failed to improve on it, and four singles brought a level final score.

Don Kuhnell skipped his rink to an early 5-1 advantage. However, the opposition lengthened the jack and the results changed in their favour.

Only one further end during the next 11 ends went to the home side, although the losing ends were kept mainly to singles, which prevented counts on many occasions. Three shots during the final ends reduced the deficit.

The rink skipped by Howard Craven never managed to get started.

A ‘3’ on the third was the only success during the first eight ends , leaving them 14-3 behind. Five shots scored in the following two ends brought some hope, but only one further success during the remaining ends left them well down at the finish.

Scores: E Heppenstall, A Ralph, S Clarke, D Kuhnell 11, N Williams, C Daw, J Rice, C Bates 16; J Stacey, E Davies I Heppenstall, D Jeffries 19, M Seaford, P Hanley, J Manfield, A Jones 12; A Prince, M Curtis, P Ellis, K Chedgzoy 13, T Gittings, G Leach, D Parker, G White 13; D Tuck, I Robertson, W Craven, H Craven 12, J Follow, R Greatrex, J Acklow, M Gershenson 32. Final score: 55-73.

There was no Saturday game to report this week. The Carruthers will continue with a trip to Wyndham BC this coming Saturday.

BUSINESS property adviser, Christie & Co has been instructed to market the leasehold interest for the Crazy Café in Penarth.

On the ground floor of a 'mixed-use development' which has recently undergone extensive refurbishment, the cafe is on one of the main retail parades overlooking Penarth Pier and the Bristol Channel.

The Crazy Café was set up by Mr Hayward who is looking for a tenant and owner operator to take the business on and move it forward.

He said: "We have had an excellent first year in the café and have established it as one of the best available in Wales with its food and its position.

U3A learns about female war artists

THE speaker for the May meeting of Barry U3A, Rosemary Chaloner, started by saying that the three words 'women war artists' were not normally seen together. This was not for the want of trying.

Many women in both the first and second World Wars attempted to get permission to 'go to the front', but this was normally denied.

However, women throughout the ages have always attempted to portray war in their art, such as the women who created the Bayeux Tapestry of the Norman invasion of Britain in 1066.

Around 1800, Lady Elizabeth Butler created paintings drawn from articles she had read in the papers, accounts of the Napoleonic Wars and the battle of Rorke's Drift [1879], but these paintings were rather romanticised.

By the time of World War One, women were actually being commissioned to paint war scenes of one kind or another. As most women could not get permission to go to the front, much of their art is of the 'home front' variety.

Scenes of women working in factories such as Anna Airy's painting of 'An Aircraft Assembly Shop at Hendon' and Clare Atwood's 'On Leave,' showing exhausted troops resting. One artist, Margaret Lindsay Williams, lived in Barry and painted Welsh soldiers.

Some of the World War Two paintings became famous as propaganda such as Dame Laura Knight's picture of 'Corporal Daphne Pearson' and 'Ruby Loftus Screwing a Breech Ring'.

A few female artists did manage to get to the front, usually serving as nurses and ambulance drivers and therefore their paintings could actually show the frontline.

Olive Mudie Cooke was one such artist and one of her pictures was 'In an Ambulance, a VAD lighting a cigarette' for the wounded soldier.

In the 1980s Linda Kitson actually managed to get to the front in the Falklands War as an artist where she did over 400 sketches, 60 of which are in the Imperial War Museum.

Paintings were not the only art; there were also photographers. Olive Edis was only allowed to go to the front after World War One, so in 1919, she took photographs of the Queen Mary Auxillary Corp welding.

Another photographer, Christina Broom, took homefront photos of soldiers leaving from Waterloo, amongst many others.

There were also sculptresses commissioned to decorate memorials after the war.

If you are no longer in full time employment or raising a family, then you are in your third age and new members are welcome to come along to meetings. The next one is on Monday, June 4 at 2pm in Bethel Baptist Church Hall at Harbour Road on the roundabout in Park Crescent.

It's just fascinating at Samantha B's

TO celebrate the royal wedding, Samantha B held a competition for ladies – wearing a hat or fascinator –to call in.

We were delighted that a steady flow of ladies called in looking resplendent in their hats and outfits.

One lucky lady, Judith, had her photo taken with Prince Harry before he went on to the festivities (also known as Judith's husband Ross).

All the names of the entrants were put in a hat and the winner was drawn earlier this week.

Sam would like to thank you all for playing along and joining in the fun.

RAMBLERS ENJOY THE CLIFFTOPS AT PENARTH

ON a sunny, late spring evening, a group of eight walkers met their leader Sue J from Penarth and District Ramblers in the car park at Penarth clifftop and, heading along pavements, made their way to the old disused railway line which is now a pedestrian and cycle track.

Heading down through Cosmeston Drive and crossing Lavernock Road to enter Cosmeston Country Park, the evening light was shimmering on the still water of the eastern lake.

Following the boardwalk through the reed beds and joining Mile Road to pass the medieval village, painted golden by the sunshine, and re-crossing Lavernock Road, a pavement along St Mary's Well Bay Road led them down to The Bay Caravan Park, where they joined the Wales Coast Path.

Walking around the edges of cropped fields brought them across a wooden footbridge and into the western end of Lavernock Nature Reserve with its grand views across St Mary's Well Bay towards Sully Island.

Heading through the centre of the reserve through the derelict remains of the World War 2 anti-aircraft gun battery and emerging onto Fort Road, whose name commemorates the original fort built during the Victorian era, tramping south they reached St Lawrence Church.

On the outer wall of the churchyard is a plaque which commemorates the fact that in 1897 Marconi and his friend George Kemp successfully sent the first radio signal across open water to Flat Holm and then to Brean Down in Somerset.

Following the cliff path eastwards above Ranny Bay to return to their start there were great views, all still bathed in sunshine of Flat and Steep Holm, up the Severn Estuary towards the Severn Bridge and across to Weston-Super-Mare and Brean Down, as well as Penarth Pier and promenade with Cardiff Bay in the background.

On May 24, meet 6.30pm at Penarth clifftop car park for a 3.5-mile easy walk taking in the cliff walk, parks, St Augustine's Church and Joseph Parry's grave; contact Louise on 07780 672 474.

On May 26, meet 9am at Cogan Leisure Centre for a 14-mile moderate walk taking in Monmouth, Offa's Dyke and the River Wye; contact John R on 029 2070 8294.

On May 31, meet 6.30pm at Dinas Powys village square for a 4.5-mile moderate walk, taking in Michaelston-le-Pit and the Ice House; contact Geraint on 029 2051 5278.

Wear suitable clothing, preferably boots and carry waterproofs, food and drinks. Some degree of fitness is required and if you are in any doubt, then please contact the walk leader for advice.

To follow the group log onto www.penarthramblers.wordpress.com or Facebook. Programmes and membership advice can be obtained from Pam on 029 20 25 5102.

Locals try their hand at sailing on club's open day

ON Saturday, Sully Sailing Club hosted an Open Day, as part of the Royal Yachting Association's 'Push the Boat Out' campaign.

While very light winds made the sailing difficult, the sunny weather meant that those who ventured afloat had a great time and were ready to enjoy the barbecue on their return ashore.

Club volunteers took nearly 50 adults and children afloat and some of them will be returning to take part in the club's training programme on Wednesday evenings before progressing to club racing on a Sunday.

On Sunday morning members were back at the club for the two races scheduled as part of the Early Bird Series, and this time the light winds were much less welcome.

One race was completed over the high tide period but as the ebb set in it became impossible to make progress against the increasing flow of water and the second race was abandoned.

The winner of the completed race was Nicola Sutton in a Topaz Uno Race from Bob Laing in a Laser while Neil Brookes was third.

Housing association raises cash for Alzheimer's Society

Hafod staff display fundraising total of £5,155 for the Alzheimer's Society.

STAFF from Vale housing and care provider Hafod, have been raising funds over the past year for their chosen charity, the Alzheimer's Society.

The fundraising team organised events including a Christmas raffle, bake sales, office bingo, dress down days, afternoon tea and the very popular 'senior managers' day out' as well as staff joining memory walks organised by the Alzheimer's Society, resulting in a grand total of £5,155.

A member of Hafod's fundraising team, Nerys Eldridge, said: "The Alzheimer's Society is a cause close to our hearts as an increasing number of our tenants, residents and loved suffer from dementia.

"We were overwhelmed by the generosity of our colleagues, service users and contractors so thank you to everyone who helped us. We couldn't have done it with you.

"Hafod has over 250 service users who suffer from dementia within our care services alone. Throughout the last year we have worked with the Alzheimer's Society to provide training to over 800 staff via the 'Dementia Friends' initiative with over 350 members of staff registering as Dementia Friends."

Cheryl George, community fundraiser, said: "Alzheimer's Society Cymru is here for anyone affected by dementia. We provide information and support, improve care, fund research, and create lasting change for people affected by dementia.

"The £5,155 raised will go directly to helping people living with dementia today as well as helping us to fund vital research for tomorrow. A huge thank you to everyone at Hafod."

The Alzheimer's Society work across England, Wales and Northern Ireland offering information, care and support to people with dementia, their families, friends and carers. They also invest in research into dementia care, cause, cure and prevention as well as campaigning to raise awareness of dementia.

Valeways' Women's Walk

THE Mayor of Barry, Cllr Janice Charles, attended Valeways Famous Women's Walk at the Knap/Porthkerry in Barry on May 18 and also attended the Cemetery Walk organised by Cllr Nic Hodges on May 20.

The Mayor would like to thank both Valeways and Cllr Nic Hodges for a thoroughly enjoyable experience and walk and for providing an interesting historical insight into Famous Women and the history provided by Cllr Nic Hodges at Barry Cemetery.

Llantwit Major AFC reserves lift the cup!

AFTER cup disappointment against St Athan, Llantwit Major AFC reserves had another cup final opportunity to right that wrong with Rhoose standing in their way.

The Major reshuffled the pack and had starts for Lewis Brown, Ryan Malton and Stephen Phillips. The reserve side started the game the better and kept the ball from Rhoose, who were happy to conceded the majority of possession early on.

Attacks from Llantwit became more and more dangerous as forwards Max Morgan, Stephen Phillips and Josh Morgan all came close with the Rhoose back line and keeper standing tall.

It wasn't long until the deadlock was finally broken as a floated L Brown corner met the commanding captain Phill Grafton's head for his sixth goal of the season.

After the goal, Rhoose started to attack Llantwit's defence which saw the back four of Wrigley, Tracey, Cutter and Malton all on form to keep their side in the lead, while keeper Carl Roberts held on to everything that came to him to relieve his team of pressure.

The second half saw Llantwit attack with more intent as Josh Morgan found plenty of space on the left to isolate his opposing number.

Josh finally saw his efforts contribute to a goal as his shot was saved but the ball fell into Phillips' path for him tap it in from six yards.

Two goals became three when the in-form Josh finally scored as he breezed past two defenders to slide it past the keeper.

Colm Garrett was introduced to the game and immediately made an impact, and his goal sealed the 4-0 win for the Major with a solid and fluid team performance.

Chris Vinson and Ryan Malton worked tirelessly throughout the game but it was Lee Tracey who won man of the match, hardly putting a foot wrong in defence.

With Llantwit beating BRT in the league, this cup victory saw them vlaim the double, which is a huge achievement for a side put together with lots of new players.

The last three league games ended with Llantwit defeating Glennbrook 12-2, BV 12-0 and Vale Madrid 10-0, resulting in a record of 18 games and 18 wins, with over 100 goals scored.

A truly great season on and off the pitch for the reserves and with the first team achieving promotion and enjoying success, a winning mentality has developed within the club.

Thank you all who contributed.

Local boxers impress at event

ON Friday, May 18, Llantwit Major Amateur Boxing Club took five boxers to compete in Nantymoel ABC's club show in Sarn Social Club.

First to box was Tom Collins. Tom is 10 years old and has fantastic potential. He faced a more experienced and heavier opponent, William Day of Colcot ABC, in a three one-minute round contest.

Tom, in the red corner, started the first round well, using his jab to good effect. William showed the weight difference and forced Tom to think fast and use his footwork to get out of the way of some big shots.

The bout was evenly contested and could have gone to either boxer. However, the judges saw William as the winner.

The club is very impressed with Tom's attitude and performances this season.

Next to box was Theo Davies, 14 years old and in his first bout. Theo was calm and showed no nerves going into the contest.

He stuck to the game plan and kept things nice and simple in the first round; his opponent Jack Elias of Neath Melyn ABC was strong and landed with a right hand early in the first round.

Theo turned up the tempo towards the final bell, and landing a flurry of shots, forcing the referee to give a standing eight count.

The second round was much the same, with Theo dominating and overpowering his opponent, giving him a second standing eight count in the second round.

In between rounds, Theo was calm and composed and listened well to instructions. After a strong start to the third round from the Neath boxer, Theo found an opening and delivered the final blows of the round when the referee stepped in and stopped the contest.

The next bout for Llantwit saw Mason Evans take to the ring in an exhibition bout with current Welsh junior champion Niall Bacon, boxing for Nantymoel ABC.

Evans of Llantwit Major was strong and made great use of his feet coming in and finding shots from different angles.

This was a bout for the boxing purists, and one everyone, including Mason and Niall, enjoyed.

At 85kg, Jac Bastida was next to take to the ring and despite showing huge amounts of heart, guts and determination he was unable to impact the fight enough to win the judges over.

Finally, we saw Seb Harris step in the ring for his first bout; albeit another exhibition, this heavyweight contest was a pleasure to watch.

Seb started the contest well and stuck to his jab and rear hand, catching his opponent and home boxer, Gavin Duckfield of Nantymoel ABC with some well-timed and accurate punches.

The second round was much the same, with Seb setting the tone and dominating the fight, until a big left hook caught Seb square on the jaw and the referee gave a standing eight count.

Seb was shaken by this shot, but kept his composure and saw the round through. The third round saw Duckfield turn up the tempo early on and Seb, still regaining his legs from the shot landed in the second round, did well to avoid another.

It didn't take long in the third round for Seb to find his feet again and started to show the dominance he displayed in the first round.

A fantastic night for boxing, and a great evening for Llantwit Major boxing club.

We are working with Llantwit Major football club for an event taking place on June 9 at Frampton Fields.

A number of members of the football club have been training hard over the last eight weeks and are ready to put on a show, in what promises to be a fantastic family day out in Llantwit Major.

Tickets are available from Cafe Unwind and SOTA tattoo shop in Llantwit Major, and also available through the football club and boxing club.

In the early stages of the match the Bridgend team were looking good.

Bob Penn's team were 4-0 down after four ends but drew level on the sixth end and never lost the lead, winning 28-15.

Dennis Snelling's rink took a lead on the first end and never lost it, winning 25-16.

Colin Wilson's rink held level until the sixth end but by the 10th end they were 10 shots adrift - but not out. They took the lead on the 18th end and won 25-19.

Norman Wilkinson's rink were 5-13 down on end 12 and 6-15 down on end 14 but fought back with a five on the last end, losing 20-22.

Rink scores: Gerry Lloyd, Stan Harding, Clive Pritchard and Bob Penn 28-15; Bryan Williams, John Wathes, Tony Lewis and Denniis Snelling 25-16; Mansel Davey, John Jones, John Trott and Colin Wilson 25-19; Terry Dunsworth, Bryan Hole, Steve Close and Norman Wilkinson 20-22.Final score: Cowbridge 98, Bridgend 72.

A big thankyou to Cowbridge ladies who laid on a superb tea and for sorting out the raffle (captain Bob Penn forgot!).

Also thanks to Len Taylor for looking after the bar.

Local youngsters star at Cardiff Arms Park!

WITH their club team Pentyrch RFC, Cowbridge year seven school boys George Greest, Sam Colsee and Samuel William Hale were victorious in the Landrover Cardiff Blues plate competition.

On a hot sunny Sunday in front of a packed south stand at the Cardiff Arms Park, Pentyrch under-12s, current Cardiff and Vale District champions, took on a very strong St Peters RFC in the final.

Big occasion nerves were evident but were soon calmed when Pentyrch took a 12 point lead midway through the first half.

Strong defending was needed to counter the St. Peters onslaught which finally broke through to pull back into the game, going into half-time 12 - 12.

The restart saw a very determined St Peters, but once again the Pentyrch defence held them up to make progress back into the St.Peters half.

The turning point in the game came when Pentyrch were awarded a penalty 20 metres out, which was brought forward to 10 metres after a St Peters infringement.

A quick-thinking Sion Davies saw an opportunity for a quick tap and go, and taking St Peters by surprise he scored a game-changing try that put Pentyrch back into the lead.

From this point on Pentyrch remained in front despite some valiant play from St Peters.

One more try sealed the game, taking Pentyrch to a deserved 22-12 victory.

An excited crowd cheered on the boys as they were awarded the trophy and medals by British Lion and Welsh international Gethin Jenkins.

All in all, a fitting end to a very successful year for the year seven boys of Pentyrch RFC - Cardiff Blues Plate competition winners and Cardiff and Vale District Champions 2018.

Heavy defeat for second team

COWBRIDGE Cricket Club seconds lost badly on Saturday against Drefach in Division Five of the South Wales Cricket League.

The writing was on the wall before a ball was bowled, as Cowbridge only had eight players and it was fortunate that they won the toss and batted, as it would have been even more painful otherwise.

As it was, the Broad Shoard club managed 125-6 in 40 overs, with David Gascoyne scoring 55 and Naveed Younas adding 34.

With huge gaps in the field and Cowbridge having to call on second string bowlers, Drefach needed only 16 of their allotted 40 overs to score the winning runs and the game was over by 4.45pm, although there was time for Jonty Webb and Isaac Owen to get a few wickets, while veteran David Webb took a fine diving catch.

Clearly the club could do with some more players - Hugh Williams, Sara Russell and family, Jonathan Smart, David Gascoyne and others have been putting a lot of effort into the junior section to bring through talent, but that can take time.

Meanwhile, it would be very handy if anyone who would like to play cricket would contact David Gascoyne on 07974 391749.

Last-minute penalty ends Dinas Powys' season in an enthralling encounter

A HUMDINGER of a contest between Dinas Powys RFC and Heol-y-Cyw was enjoyed by a large crowd gathered in the sunshine as the Villagers finally bought their season to an end with a stunning last-minute 31-29 victory.

Dinas Powys were not in the lead during this contest until the final dramatic kick of the game, trailing after four minutes of the start until the dramatic conclusion.

Hosts Heol-y-Cyw, already relegated from the division, took to the field with a side brimming with players from the upper leagues, determined to finish their season on a high note.

The home side took the lead with a well worked converted try after four minutes, but the Villagers responded with a stunning try of their own following an elaborate set move that eventually saw fly half Ben White throw a long mis-pass to free left wing Duke Durham.

The Villagers were in generous mood and proceeded to gift two chances that the home side gratefully accepted, a clearance kick following the ball being passed back into the 22 metre area presented a lineout that was rolled over the tryline and within a further two minutes, a dropped pass was collected and a further try added.

The home side led by 21-7 with 25 minutes of the contest played and Dinas were in need of inspiration – and a score.

A solid scrum allowed White to kick a long cross-kick downfield giving the enthusiastic Durham the chance to show his pace; the kick was gathered by the home right wing but Durham was upon him, throwing him to the floor and ripping the ball at the same time.

The superb Sam Middlemiss was up in support and accepted the pass before crossing for the try, and with White adding the conversion the scorline was 21-14.

The enthusiasm and the understanding of the situation by Middlemiss was greatly appreciated by teamates and supporters, but the joy was shortlived as Heol-y-Cyw scored their fourth try in the left corner following an intricate threequarter move following a lineout.

Crucially, the difficult conversion was missed and at half-time Dinas Powys trailed by 26-14.

This was a high-quality, physical contest that was played in good spirit and excellently refereed by an official who was consistent and calming in his application of the laws of the game.

Team captain Tom Baister enthused his team for the final 40 minutes of the season and with scrum-half increasing the tempo of the contest at every opportunity, the Villagers started the second half strongly.

Powerful carries by Baister and No.8 Corey Imperatto drew the penalty from a rugged home defence, and although eminently kickable, a quick tap penalty was taken and White fed flanker Ryan Shallish, who sped between two defenders to score the Villagers' third try.

ABOVE: Action from the game.

With White adding the extra two points, the score advanced to 26-21.

The home side, urged on by their supporters, were relentless and only superb defence by second rows Gareth Williams and Rhys Gambold prevented them adding to their tally.

Indeed, the home side were soon in the process of scoring a try only for the wonderful Lewis Dunleavy to dislodge the ball as the player crossed the tryline.

The defence was so resolute that the home side decided to convert a penalty awarded rather than kick for a lineout and they advanced their lead to 29-21 with five minutes of the match remaining.

The Villagers scrum was dominant and with the forwards providing a consistent supply of ball, it allowed the enigmatic White to orchestrate the backline.

The dancing feet of centre Rhys Evans were instrumental in providing supporting scrum half Tom Davies to feed replacement backrower Lewys John to bulldoze over for the Villagers' fourth try of the afternoon and the conversion added by White saw the home side's lead reduced to one point with only two minutes remaining.

The restart was gathered and the relentless Baister carried the ball and his team forward; the ball was moved smoothly from player to player.

A sniping run from scrum half Davies breached the home defence and the covering tackler could not resist using his hand on the floor and the Villagers were awarded the penalty.

Ben White walked forward and called for the kicking tee – he stared at the posts that stood 40 metres in front of him and struck the ball. The home supporters raised a cheer as the ball appeared to be drifting left, but then it was the Dinas Powys contingent that cheered as the ball changed trajectory and veered right and split the posts to provide a dramatic victory.

The whistle was blown, the game was over, and the Villagers had gathered five league points to finish the league season with a total of 59 points following 11 victories, two draws and nine defeats in their first season in Division 1 following their promotion last season.

A highly-satisfying season concluded with a thrilling victory that ensured that Dinas Powys RFC had consolidated their position as the highest-positioned team in the Vale, achieved with local players as noted by captain Tom Baister after the game as he highlighted that 13 of the starting 15 players had attended St Cyres school.

Well done to all concerned with Dinas Powys RFC for providing so many memorable contests during the season. HJ

The Vale of Glamorgan Football League round-up

BARRY ATHLETIC are Vale of Glamorgan AFL Premier Division Champions.

It was a day of controversy in the Vale League on Saturday as Barry Athletic were crowned Premier Division Champions in bizarre fashion.

Coming into the weekend, leaders St Athan needed a win over title rivals FC Barry Belgrade to claim the title after Belgrade's dramatic collapse recently, where they lost their last three games.

However, Belgrade could not field a side and withdrew from the league, thus seeing their record expunged.

St Athan consequently lost the four points gained from games against Belgrade, and so Barry Athletic required a win from their now final game against Penarth Town to clinch the championship.

Athletic dispatched Penarth 4-2 to take top spot.

The Premier Division has been a competitive and tight league in which on their day any team could beat another, and following a tremendous title race Barry Athletic are deserved champions.

In Division One, there was more discussion and debate as champions Sully Sports now await for the vote on whether clubs with first teams in the higher SWFA Alliance League can see their reserve teams be promoted to the top division of local league.

This is a rule that has denied teams like Sully and Cogan promotion to the Premier Division in recent years.

In the one remaining Division One game, Tynewydd finished their season strongly with a 1-0 win over Cogan.

In Division Two, it was a much more straight-forward affair with Llantwit Major continuing their complete domination of the division with a 10-0 win over Vale Madrid.

An incredible first season back in the Vale League for Llantwit, having won every league fixture, the Dockers Cup and finishing runners-up in the Barry Cup.

And so the 2017/18 season comes to an end, another exciting and entertaining season in the Vale.

Congratulations to Premier Division champions Barry Athletic, Barry Cup winners St Athan, ASRS Cup winners FC Barry Belgrade, Division One champions and Supporters Cup winners Sully Sports and Division Two champions and Dockers Cup winners Llantwit Major. HD

GOLFERS IMPRESS IN REGIONAL COMPETITION

LAST Monday saw five Special Olympics Cardiff & Vale golfers set off from their home club of St Andrews Major Golf Club for the Special Olympics West Midland regional golf competition held at Bicester Golf Club.

Monday afternoon was used for games and practice ready for the competition on Tuesday.

First to tee off were the 18-hole competitors in the group. Sam Lazenbury from Barry hit a great drive, while in the second group to tee off, James Savory from Barry, playing his first 18-hole competition, drove slightly to the right.

The two groups of 18-hole golfers were closely match ed throughout.

Then it was the turn of the nine hole golfers to tee off just after 11am, which included Gareth Lloyd and Mark Eveleigh, both from Barry, in the first group, followed by Adrian Abbott from Llantwit Major in the second group. These were also closely-fought rounds.

The results saw Sam Lazenbury receive a gold medal with James Savory winning the Division 2 and receiving a bronze medal overall in the 18-hole competition.

In the nine-hole competition, in Division 1, Gareth Lloyd earned silver and Mark Eveleigh bagged a bronze (this was decided on countback) and in Division 2 Adrian Abbott received the silver medal.

We must thank John Hastings, the golf professional, at St Andrews Major GC for coaching these golfers over the winter months.

He has certainly used his magic as this was the golfers' first outing on a course this year, and we would like to thank St Andrews Major GC for their continued support.

NFU golf day raises over £6,000 for Velindre charity

THE annual NFU Mutual Insurance Charity Golf Day was held last Friday at a sunny Southerndown Golf Club where 152 golfers helped to raise over £6,000 for the Velindre Hospital Cancer Care appeal fund.

With quality prizes donated by many generous sponsors, the day's individual and team competitions were keenly contested.

Gary Punter, with a personal best score of 45 stableford points, claimed first prize in the men's section with Richard Jeremy and Daryl Hamonda both with 37 points finishing in second and third place.

In the ladies individual competition former Llantrisant and Pontyclun lady champion Helen Calvert finished ahead of the field with a very impressive 37 points, with Jill Joseph on 35 points finishing runner-up.

In the team competition, where the best three scores per hole counted, Darrell Hamonda, John Peters, Richard Jeremy and Mark Hale representing Principality Plastics with 114 points finished in first place.

In second place were the Sinclair Audi team of Gary Punter, Terry Punter, Graham Jenkins and Lee Davies who scored 111 points.

Mark O'Sullivan, Tim Hanson, Neil Morgan and Mick O'Sullivan, representing M & C Civils, finished in third place with 108 points.

The ladies' winning team with 116 points comprised of Helen Calvert, Amy Watkins, Leslie Davies and Jill Joseph.

Special mention should be made of a team representing LDL Engineering who successfully defended the title for the best endeavour team.

Luke Sloan won the men's longest drive competition and a revitalised Sarah Morris hit the longest drive down the 11th hole to win the ladies' section. Nearest the pin on the par 3-holes was Andrew Hatcher on the fifth hole, Brian Jones on the seventh hole, Edward Lakin on the 10th hole and veteran Cowbridge resident Bryan Owen on the 14th hole.

Nick Golunski won the prize for being closest to the pin with his second shot to the 18th hole.

Edward Lakin completed a fine day by also collecting a bottle of whiskey when correctly guessing 192 balls would remain nestling in the many prickly gorse bushes associated with this venue.

Special mention also goes to event organiser Mrs Pam Harris.

Pam's superb organisational skills were highlighted at the prize presentation ceremony by Mr Larry Byrne, managing director of Club Choice Ireland Ltd, who commented the days event was one of the best he had attended during his travels throughout Europe.

Black belts for JSTKD students

JSTKD Martial Arts & Fitness celebrated the success of four students at the recent black belt grading examinations held in the Bristol.

Xantia Hobrough, Zac Hayvice and Morgan Lloyd Williams travelled to the TAGB (Tae Kwon Do Association of GB) headquarters where they were put through their paces by a panel of senior examiners.

Their extra lessons and hard work perfecting their skills paid dividends as all three were rewarded with their new belts.

In addition, Rhys Doel became JSTKD's youngest 2nd Dan as he kept his composure throughout his grading too.

This is a great achievement for Rhys who is now a year 10 student but gained his 1st Dan belt when he was still in primary school.

He has shown great dedication with his training as not only is he a team captain for JSTKD's tournament team but he has worked his way through three 'Black Belt Star' gradings on his way to his new belt.

'Stars' are special examinations for junior Black Belts who must wait for a longer period of time to adults before they can progress to 2nd Dan level.

Anyone wishing to start their own Tae Kwon Do journey with JSTKD should visit their website at www.jsktd.co.uk.

There is a free taster lesson for all new students.

Llantwit Major leave it late to secure win

WHAT a tense game for the Llantwit Major AFC supporters to endure from the side, as a goal from Sean Williams in the 88th minute enabled Llantwit to gain another three points and move them to the top of the table and in a very strong position to achieve promotion to Division One.

As usual Llantwit made a bright start and only five minutes into the game, Nathan Jones who was playing in the uncustomary role of right back, rattled the side of the net with a shot from 25 yards out.

However, Pontardawe soon hit back when two minutes later they tested Jack Lansdown in the Llantwit goal when he had to make a fine save to block a shot from their striker from eight yards out.

Llantwit kept on applying the pressure and a golden opportunity to open the scoring in the 13th minute was missed by Jonathan Fletcher when a fine cross whipped in by Nathan Jones found him unmarked at the far post, but he headed wide from a few yards out.

Pontardawe were playing their part in making it an entertaining game for the neutral supporter and Jack Lansdown was again called upon to make a fine save in the 30th minute from their striker's header from a corner kick.

Half-time arrived in a very tense affair with the score 0-0.

The second half started with Pontardawe going close with their first attack when they created an early chance, but their shot went just over the bar.

Llantwit immediately responded and both Sam Snaith and Anthony Rawlings went close with shots that just went wide.

Llantwit missed another great chance to open the scoring when a free kick taken by Nathan Jones was crossed into the goal area and found Anthony Rawlings unmarked but his header, like Fletcher's earlier, went wide of the goal.

It was getting very tense watching from the side as another chance fell to Sam Snaith, when a fine run into the goal area by Connor Goldsworthy led him to pass to Sam who, from 10 yards out, saw his shot just go wide of the far post with the keeper beaten.

It seemed the goal was never going to come as the Pontardawe goalkeeper made a tremendous save from Ben Cripps when it looked like his shot was going into the back of the net.

Finally, the deadlock was broken when, from a corner kick taken by Connor Goldsworthy, Sean Williams was left unmarked in the centre of the goals and headed home from six yards out to score a vital goal.

However, in the celebrations that followed, Jonathan Butler was shown a second yellow card by the referee for over-enthusiasm!

Llantwit now had to face the last five minutes, plus nearly another seven minutes of injury time, with 10 men.

Despite a few scares at the end which saw Jack Lansdown again make a fine save when he tipped a shot over the bar, Llantwit managed to hold on to secure a vital win.

Connor celebrates 18th win of season

BRIDGEND'S Connor Brace chalked-up his 18th winner of the season when winning the novice riders' race at the Cothelstone Point-To-Point Steeplechases last Wednesday (May 16) – and he is now a remarkable 10 wins ahead of his nearest challenger in the national novice riders' championship.

Riding his grandfather David Brace's Robin Des People, he finished ahead of his great pal Jack Tudor, of Merthyr Mawr, who was on Repeat Business.

David Brace OBE, of the Dunraven Stud at Pyle near Bridgend, has saddled 20 winners this season and at the time of writing is nine wins ahead of his nearest rival in the race to become National Leading Owner.

His horse William Money also leads the field in the National Champion Horse competition, having won six times this season.

There are three other horses challenging who have five wins.

Mr Brace's Pink Eyed Pedro leads the way in the Point-To-Point Owners and Riders Young Horse Award.

Another Welsh rider who was in good form at Cothelstone was David Prichard, who landed the young horse maiden race on his father Ian's Limoncello.

David made it a double when scoring on Massini's Blade in the first division of the open maiden and he has now ridden 11 winners this season.

Strong start to season continues for Vale seconds

ON a glorious warm day, Vale Second XI skipper Matthew Thomas had no hesitation in asking his strong batting line-up to make first use of the Machen wicket, having won the toss.

The skipper and newly promoted opener Steve Hiles set about producing a fine opening stand of 80.

Thomas was severe square of the wicket producing some fine cuts and Hiles showed all his class with an array of shots all around the wicket.

After a slog sweep for 6 off veteran spinner Robin Jones it was the spinner who had the last laugh in breaking the opening stand as Thomas was caught at short mid on for an powerfully-made 44.

Mark Francis joined Hiles for a partnership of 47 before being caught and bowled by the same bowler for 20.

Gareth Kelland joined Hiles and these two produced a magnificent partnership of 130 through some powerful hitting and excellent running between the wickets.

Hiles made full use of his opportunity to open by completing a wonderful maiden century for the club and, aside from a very risky single to extra cover, it was a chanceless innings.

Hiles finally departed in the pursuit of quick runs being stumped for 126, an innings which had included 19 boundaries.

At the other end Gareth Kelland, given his first opportunity at four, batted which great maturity, mixing his natural aggressive game with knocking the ball around in the gaps and taking singles to build his score.

Kelland completed an excellent half century and finished the innings 67 not out.

Vale finished 275-3 off their 40 overs another powerful batting total with Robin Jones the best of the Machen bowlers taking 2-48.

Machen set off positively in their pursuit of Vale's total scoring 36 off the first five overs despite Greg Andrews producing an impressive opening spell of bowling.

This partnership was not broken until the 12th over as the ever-enthusiastic Andrews celebrated with a lion's roar as he knocked over the stumps of Nigel Hicks for 23 with Machen's total on 71.

This was to be Andrews' last over but he had completed an impressive spell of 1-11 off his 6 overs.

This bowling change was about to bring a remarkable transformation to the game as Tom Lazarus' slow bowling was introduced into the attack in the 14th over.

His first over produced a remarkable quadruple wicket maiden which included a hat-trick. Clive Fussell was cleaned bowled first ball, Robin Jones bowled fourth ball, Barrie Burnett caught by Matthew Thomas' fifth ball and the hat-trick completed on the last ball of the over as H Owen was clean bowled.

Lazarus continued to torment the Machen batsmen and finished with remarkable figures of 8-3-23-7.

Despite not getting wickets, both young 12-year-old Aaron Davies and slightly older Richard Cole both bowled good spells.

However, conscious of missing out on maximum bowling points the previous week, the captain turned to his vice-captain Mark Francis to give him his first bowl of the season and he duly obliged, taking the last two wickets.

The first was with a gloriously bowled (and Waqar Younis-like) inswinging Yorker; Francis then finished the match, with Ashley Taylor taking a catch behind off an inside edge leaving Francis with figures of 2-12.

Vale recorded a comprehensive 121-run maximum point victory which maintained their unbeaten start to the season.

This was another hugely impressive performance from Vale Seconds who look a real force in the division.

They meet the only other unbeaten side in the division, Pontymister and Cross Keys, at Corntown this week in a top of the table clash.

SUN SHINES ON LLANTWIT MAJOR TENNIS CLUB!

ALL PICTURES BY HOLLIE HOWELS.

IT was only two years ago that Llantwit Major Tennis Club was re-instated and the club recently celebrated the Great British Tennis Weekend and their open day with the courts packed with children and adults enjoying tennis in the sun.

An outstanding day was had by all. The sun shone down and members of our community turned up in droves to try out tennis free and to get to know our local tennis club.

The afternoon began with a fantastic number of children signing up to join in the afternoon's sessions of activities, ball games and mini tennis, so much so, an extra session was added to the day.

It was tremendous to see so many children getting involved and having such a lot of fun on court.

Later on in the afternoon, it was the turn of the adults, some playing for the first time ever, and others picking up a tennis racquet for the first time in many years.

With club membership discounted especially for the open day, the club was absolutely delighted to sign up lots of new adults and children to the annual membership.

Coaching sessions were especially popular among the children and the club is looking forward to seeing everyone on court in the new cycle of coaching starting on June 4.

The club would like to thank everyone who turned out to try tennis and everyone who gave up their valuable time to help out at the event, on our food stall, signing people into the event, offering information and helping on court.

If you'd like to try tennis or play more, social tennis runs every Saturday at 2pm.

All levels of player are welcome to join in from beginners to wannabe Federers – it's a mix-in session so you are guaranteed a game!

If you would like information about Llantwit Major Tennis Club membership, coaching or social calendar go to our website llantwittennis.co.uk, or find us on Facebook.

Willey too wily as Cowbridge Firsts win by eight wickets

MAESTEG CELTIC came to Cowbridge with a misson to return to the Llynfi Valley with a win to consolidate their challenge to win the Dan Radcliffe Cup.

However, they were sent homewards to think again by the Cowbridge First XI who were victorious by eight wickets.

Back in the 1950s and 60s, the Celtic were a cricketing power.

Champions of the SWCA on a number of occasions. County players, including most recently John Hopkins, were produced as a matter of course and the club was something of a model in terms of development.

More recently, the Celtic and Cowbridge have both been yearning for a return to a status both clubs believe they should hold. This has resulted in some rare old battles.

However, Saturday was not one of these.

The Celtic skipper Gareth Hopkins won the toss and decided to bat. At 63-3 it seemed things were proceeding in an unexceptional but solid fashion and the visitors must have been eyeing a useful total.

Then the Cowbridge pacemen, Brad Evans (1-21) and Sam Routledge (2-28), were withdrawn from the attack by the shrewd skipper, Christopher E Willey.

The change turned the game on its head as the sagacious Nick Wood proceeded to take 4-19 with his off breaks and in no time the Maesteg hopes had crashed to ruins.

Sam Russell and Tom Williams also picked up wickets as the innings closed on 83 all out.

Trying to defend such a paltry score would have been difficult, whoever was trying to defend it.

The only real respite afforded by the home side to the visitors was the dropping down the order of Ben Wright to let some others get a knock.

However, the relief was short-lived as the rock, Tom Merilaht, continued his own good form with a carefree 45 not out and with 19 from Chris E Willey and 24 not out from Brad Evans, the inevitable victory was completed before the bar was open.

That issue was soon put right and the lads settled into a lengthy de-brief.

It was a comprehensive win and it put Cowbridge in second place. Gorseinon lead with 69, Cowbridge have 67 and Gowerton 65. The next clutch of clubs are a win behind.

As it is just one up to the Premier League, every point is important even at this early stage.

This week, the First XI go to Gowerton on the wide expanse of Victoria Road.

Those readers who endeavour to guess our captain's middle name will be bought a drink by the club president at the Llandysul game.

Cowbridge RFC cap season off with presentation night

THE rugby season finally drew to a close last Friday night as over 100 guests attended the annual dinner and presentations at Cowbridge Rugby Club.

The evening started with the players entering en masse to their tables to great applause from the guests following the club's promotion.

With club secretary Rob Price as MC, chairman John Griffiths was introduced, welcoming main guests ex-Welsh international Rhys Williams and current Welsh international and part-time lion-tamer Scott Baldwin (to loud lion-like roars from the crowd).

Andy Tucker and his crew then provided, as always, an excellent meal of pate, roast beef, cheese and biscuits and coffee.

Next, Rhys started by congratulating the first team and spoke about the values of roots rugby in Wales.

He then introduced Scott who started by describing the 'lion incident' when he was bitten on the hand by a captive lion in South Africa while on tour with the Ospreys in September 2017.

A doctor initially treated the wound but Scott ended up in hospital and in a worst case scenario could have lost his hand.

One of the pluses was he flew home business class.

Then followed an excellent question and answer session with Rhys asking Scott questions that had been submitted by guests, and Scott giving some thoughtful answers to serious questions including the relevance of academies, the Wales summer tour and next year's World Cup – one of our best guests for many years. Many thanks, Rhys and Scott.

Yet again there was a superb speech from captain Richie Howson who mentioned just about everyone at the club, highlighting the importance of the youth team (with many now representing the Firsts) and coaches Leigh and Dan's three-year plan.

Leigh then thanked the sponsors Colin Boxall (representing CS Boxall Ltd), Dan Jones (HRT) and Gerwyn Jones (Molson Coors) for their continued valuable support.

He also mentioned how tough the first year of the plan was with not enough players but through it all highlighted the captaincy of Huw Lougher – a credit to the club.

There was praise for co-coach Dan Williams who was the glue through the years and had the vision to see the plan come to fruition.

Special mention was made the front row of Jon Bater, Craig Boxall and Dani John whose performances underpinned many of the season's victories and physio Kristian Rue, who was invaluable throughout.

Of course, none of this would have been possible without an outstanding squad of players and so to the awards.

Top try scorer (backs) – Will Williams (eight tries); top try scorer (forwards) – Joe Davies (15 tries); top points scorer – Ben Wright (152 points); most improved player – Joe Davies; young player of the year – Jack Anderson; supporters' player of the year – Joe Davies; players' player of the year – Hywel Williams; players' clubman of the year – Craig Boxall; clubman of the year – Dan Williams; player of the year – Jon Bater.

A big thanks to everyone who contributed to it being a most successful evening.

Cowbridge Darts League round-up

ON Tuesday, May 15 the Edmondes Arms hosted the ladies' singles competition.

It was an excellent evening of darts with 14 ladies competing.

The first semi-final was an all-Victoria Inn affair in which Katie George defeated last year's winner Amanda Edwards 2-0.

On her way to the semi-final, Amanda Edwards hit a 98 three-dart-out, the best ladies' out of the season so far.

The second semi-final was an all-Farmers Arms affair in which Shirley Evans defeated Pam Adams, last year's runner-up.

So, for the second year running, the ladies' single final involves players from the Victoria Inn and the Farmers Arms.

Present league standings are: Edmondes B (124 points), Six Bells Inn (117), Llanharry (111), Highwayman Inn (103), Edmondes A (101), Hairy Farmers (89), Edmondes C (83), Victoria Inn (76), Farmers Arms (65), One Town Hall Square (43) and Red Lion Inn (27).

Next week on Tuesday, May 29 the Edmondes Arms will host the Captains' Cup competition and on Saturday, June 2, Llanharry Workingmen's Club will host finals night – that will conclude the 2017-2018 season.

Please note, the league is always on the lookout for new teams and teams are always on the lookout for new players.

So anyone wishing to enter a team or join a team for the 2018-2019 season is strongly encouraged to get in touch by e-mail at cowbridgedarts@gmail.com.

THREE FOR THREE FOR VALE FIRSTS

VALE CC first XI maintained their 100 per cent win record with victory against Machen at their home ground in Corntown.

The sun shone down on Vale's home ground and like the weather, the cricket did not disappoint.

Vale won the toss and elected to bat showing confidence in their previous displays where they have managed to secure maximum batting points by scoring over 200.

However, this Machen attack was one that had greatly improved from last season.

Withers (15) and JJ Davies (12) did not manage to provide a platform for their fellow top order batsman, meaning early pressure was put on new member McCay (29) and young Alex Upham (37).

Upham did an excellent job of providing stability with all of his partners developing valuable partnerships that helped Vale reach a defendable target of 187-8.

While Upham batted with maturity beyond his years with patient stroke play and control, others contributed very well, and in particular Tom Gingell (25no) who, not for the first time this season, proved how valuable he is to the side.

When Upham departed, the score was 133-6 and Gingell took responsibility at the crease and led the team in adding essential runs in the final six overs.

He was ably supported by Gilbert (12) who added quick runs and by Alex's father Darren Upham who swung hard for a quick-fire 18.

With the openers failing to score well this put pressure on Vale's top and middle order who expertly rose to the occasion.

Captain JP Davies will be delighted with the effort of all his batsman as they dug deep to put Vale in a good position at tea.

Although Vale did not manage to achieve maximum batting points they were still in a commanding position after facing a tricky Machen attack.

The pick of the Machen bowlers was G Davies who took 3-22 off his allotted nine overs with his loopy off spin claiming the wickets of McCay, M Williams and JP Davies.

After tea,Vale crossed the white line determined to maintain their faultless start to the season. D Upham struck first, claiming the wicket of G Jones (3) who once again failed to score runs in Corntown; had this been different Vale could have been in for a more difficult afternoon.

Upham was in fine form with the ball and got the wickets he deserved with impressive figures of 3-20 from his nine overs.

Having clean-bowled Machen's number three, Daz had two catches taken off his bowling – one in the slips taken by JJ Davies and the other catch taken by Sean Rowlands, who covered several metres to take a stunning (and diving) one handed catch!

Rowlands also bowled, well taking 3-24, while JJ Davies took two wickets with his vicious off spin.

The other wickets were shared between M Williams and A Upham who took a wicket each.

This meant Machen closed their innings on 95 all out.

This was an outstanding display from Vale who had to work hard to score their runs against a good bowling attack but most impressively dismissed Machen's chase by claiming all ten wickets before Machen reached three figures.

This week,Vale travel to Pontymister and Cross Keys hoping to continue their winning ways.

Many players in both the first and second team are playing very well and this will undoubtedly cause selection issues with so many players making themselves available.
